ANNOUNCING

Another NEW Performance Leader–

The Allis-Chalmers 3,000-lb FTB30-15

You can expect big performance and big savings from the New Allis-Chalmers FTB30-15 lift truck...and here is why:

It has the power to give you big performance — full 35 hp and 97 ft-lb of torque at working speed.

It has the gradability for big performance — power combined with balance and traction has enabled it to climb grades as steep as 40 percent, loaded.

It has the maneuverability for big performance. Outside turning radius is only 64 inches. Steers and handles like a car.

It has the serviceability for big savings. It takes just 20 seconds to prepare the FTB30 for service, 20 minutes to prepare it for overhaul — even a complete clutch change takes only half an hour.

Let your Allis-Chalmers material handling dealer show you the big extras you get with a new FTB30-15 lift truck. Send for descriptive literature. Allis-Chalmers, Milwaukee 1, Wisconsin.

"HEFTY" the New FTB30-15 Champ is ready to Save you more, Make you more.

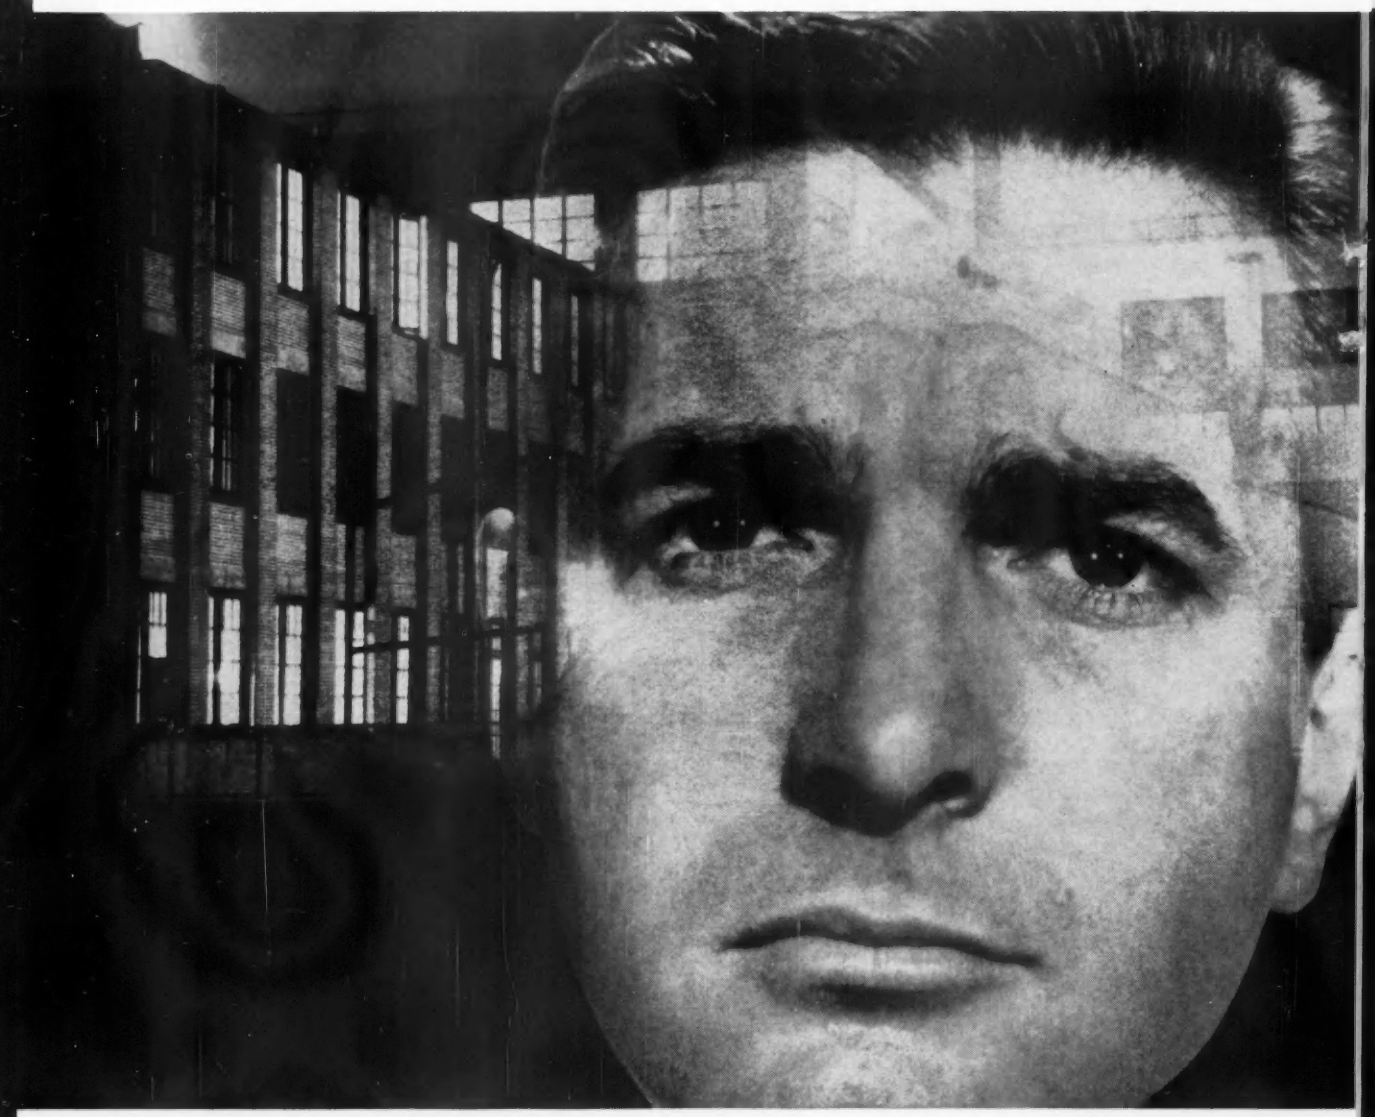
WORLD'S LARGEST LONG-DISTANCE MOVERS



Will the whistle blow tomorrow morning?

The Traffic Manager of a Midwest fertilizer plant was in real trouble. They were scraping bottom in the superphosphate bin, and unless a new shipment came in before morning the whole factory would have to shut down.

Fortunately the shipment coming from Florida had been routed via Chesapeake and Ohio. While the Traffic Manager held the phone, the C&O office was able to locate the car and assure him it would be on his siding before whistle time next morning.

That's the great thing about C&O's CLIC (Car Location Information Center). It tells you where your car is right now, because the whole system works by teletype. Every time a C&O train leaves a yard or passes a major junction, the news is teletyped to CLIC. There the information is processed and teletyped to each C&O Traffic Office concerned, so it is available to both shipper and consignee.

In these days of increased business tempo and dwindling inventories, this unique C&O service can often be a lifesaver. Is your Traffic Department making full use of it?

Would you like a copy of a booklet describing CLIC? Just write:

ICC Suggests Repeal of Water-Carrier Bulk Commodity Exemption in 72nd Annual Report

The Interstate Commerce Commission points out in its Annual Report to Congress that recommendations are at a minimum level due to passage of the Transportation Act of 1958 and an extensive study of transportation policy and related problems to be undertaken under recent legislation.

The ICC recommends that the section relating to the water-carrier bulk commodity exemption be repealed, but with provisions which preserve the rights of those carriers presently engaged in such operations under the exemptions. Also, that Section 208, which automatically gives special or charter service rights to common carriers by motor vehicle, be amended to become inapplicable to carriers issued certificates in the future.

CAB Approves Mutual Aid Plan for Airlines Grounded by Strikes

The Civil Aeronautics Board has sanctioned a plan advanced by six of the Nation's airlines to help alleviate financial losses resulting from strike actions.

The CAB action, tentative until entry of a formal order, agrees that the pact is in the public interest. Member airlines are Capital, Pan American, Eastern, United, Trans World, and American Airlines.

Several conditions have been included with the CAB's approval of the pact: rights and duties of parties to airline labor disputes provided under the Railway Labor Act remain unaffected; carriers closed by strikes are to refer passengers to alternative lines including lines not participating in the pact; and the present members must report to the Board concerning modifications of those sections of the agreement governing payments among members and payment computation methods.

Legislative Line-up

Following is a brief summary of legislative measures expected to see action in the first session of the 86th Congress

ATOMIC ENERGY — The Eisenhower Administration and Congress may work out, this year, the parts to be played by the government and private industry in atomic power plant construction.

DEFENSE — The Administration will try to hold the new military budget at not much higher than the present $40.8 billion expenditure. But the Democrats in Congress can be expected to push for more money in the budget, especially for guided missiles and other advanced weapons.

DISTRESSED AREAS — Disputes may arise between the Administration and Congress concerning federal aid for economically-distressed U. S. areas. In 1958, the President rejected legislation which exceeded the scope of the aid program he wanted.

GOVERNMENT COMPETITION—Another effort is being made to define a federal policy concerning government competition with private business. Rep. Harrison, D., Va., has introduced H. R. 99, a bill to set limits on federal enterprises of a commercial type.

HIGHWAY AID—Key question in this field is where to find extra money to sustain federal aid to highway construction. Congress will consider whether increased taxes, a special securities issue, or other means should be taken to keep the highway program rolling.

LABOR—The Administration will call on Congress to write new laws to reduce labor racketeering and provide more democratic processes within labor unions. Both Congress and the Administration have ideas on labor reforms, but they will disagree on the type and extent.

PENSION PLANS — Legislation again was introduced to encourage voluntary pension planning by self-employed persons. Bills providing tax incentives for those who set up their own retirement programs will have to buck claims that only "special groups" are aided by such incentives.

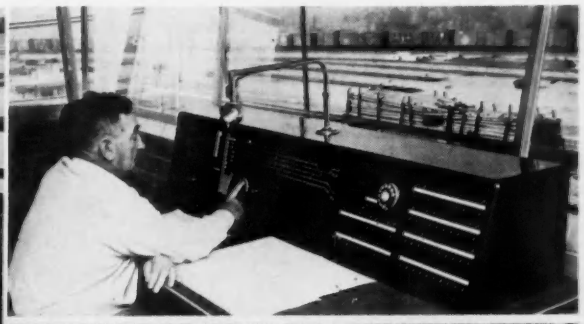
TRANSPORTATION — Rep. Younger, R., Calif., has introduced H. R. 985, proposing a federal Department of Transportation and Communications. The Department would take over such agencies as the ICC, Federal Communications Commission, and Maritime Administration. Bill is referred to the House Government Operations Committee.

NRMA Moves for Postal Changes During 48th Annual Convention

The National Retail Merchants Association, meeting in New York for its 48th Annual Convention recently, agreed on an amendment for Public Law 199. The proposal would restore the former size and weight limits for parcel post packages and provide that such packages be mailable at post offices of all classes on a uniform basis.

The NRMA also asks adequate and prompt injunctive relief in cases of secondary boycotts and strike situations where efforts are made to force employers to capitulate to practices which the law declares illegal. Also urged is the further strengthening of the multilateral system of dealing with tariff and other trade problems, and a lowering of trade barriers.

The Association recommended further that Congress make special appropriations to cover costs of franked government mail. Among those elected at the Convention were J. Gordon Dakins, executive vice president and treasurer; George Plant, assistant treasurer; and Marie A. Longo, secretary.



Dedication of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad's new $12 million automatic freight classification yard at Boyles, Ala., was held recently. Left: An air view of the yard shows classification area with departure area to the west and east. Main line is at the far left. Car retarder operator (above) watches a car pass through one of the group retarders. Classification of cars is done either automatically or manually. ASA Agrees on Basic Container Specs; ICC to Hear Highway-Rail Case

Two developments in container shipping were announced recently by the American Standards Association and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The ASA committee on container standards has prepared its basic report. The ICC has revealed that it will review Docket 32533 early in March.

A working body of 12 members of the American Standards Association met recently to develop a group of cargo-van containers which will act to minimize present confusion concerning dimensions. The group agreed on a height of 8 ft, width of 8 ft, and lengths of 8, 16, 20, 24, and 40 ft. It was agreed that decided lengths could be 3 in. shorter, but no longer than specified.

The group, headed by Chairman Bert Ogden, of Consolidated Freightways, Inc., will report its findings to the Van Container Subcommittee of the MH-5 ASA Committee.

March 16, 1959, is the date set for a hearing of Docket 32533 in which Eastern Central Motor Carriers opposes the Baltimore and Ohio and others in connection with the publication of flat rates for the transportation of 70,000-lb minimums in flatcars. The ICC, in a recent order, has vacated its suspension of B & O rates under which shippers must furnish containers and flat cars and perform loading and unloading services between points, also.

Rates continue under investigation. This exception was granted after receipt of a plea that rates and services offered were necessary to preserve B & O traffic and prevent diversion to other railroads publishing similar rates and charges on like traffic. Also, that the B & O did not have suitable rolling stock to handle trailers tendered in normal piggy-back service and had to rely on the shipper furnishing trailers and flatcars.

NYC-PRR Merger Called Off

Merger agreements between the Pennsylvania Railroad and the New York Central System have been discontinued until more than the coordination of both roads' facilities is resolved.

The PRR, not in agreement with the Central's offer to simply merge facilities before effecting a corporate connection, is agreeable with the Central's merger study, announced Nov. 1, 1957, but is disappointed with the lack of definitive action taken by the Central. The study should combine several systems in the East which have almost balanced financial strength, the Central believes.

Another major Eastern line, the Baltimore and Ohio, is studying the Central statement.

Total Carloadings for '58 Show 14.9% Drop For Year; LCL Shipments Down 15.2%

Loading of revenue freight on Class I railroads this year amounted to 30,206,494 cars, the Association of American Railroads has announced.

When compared with last year, a decrease of 5,293,654 cars or 14.9 per cent is reported. Merchandise lcl shipments, totaling 2,750,141 in 1957, reached 2,331,447 during 1958. Grain and grain product shipments, which hit 2,674,292 in 1957, increased to 2,873,063 in 1958.

Other totals for 1958 are: livestock, 307,723; coal, 5,521,812; coke, 341,803; forest products, 1,849,868; ore, 1,745,380; and miscellaneous, 15,235,398. These six figures are all lower than 1957 figures.

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended Dec. 27, 1958, consisted of 431,938 cars. This is an increase of 5.5 per cent over the corresponding week in 1957, but represents a drop of 11.4 per cent from the figure for the corresponding week in 1956.

EITL, NITL to Intervene

By its recent order, the Interstate Commerce Commission has permitted the Eastern Industrial Traffic League, the National Industrial Traffic League, and other groups to intervene in Docket 32533, Eastern Central Motor Carriers Association, Inc., vs. B & O RR. Co., et al, and related proceedings.

The NITLeague is intervening on behalf of all member defendants, as is the EITLeague. The proceedings will be considered on a consolidated record before ICC Examiner George A. Dahan in Washington on March 16, 1959.

In its petition EITLeague points out that its members are engaged in the manufacture and marketing of commodities and utilize the services and facilities of railroad defendants in the distribution of their products and that the rail rates and charges complained about are applied to the movement of freight in highway trailers loaded on railroad flat cars.

Truck-Rail, Lift-On-Off Service Inaugurated on West Coast Area

The Southern Pacific Railroad and Consolidated Freightways, Inc., have started coordinated truck-rail service beween Portland, Ore., and Oakland, Calif.

The operation, a direct development of piggy-back practice, is the first of its type on the West Coast. New containers permit the use of standard rail flatcars instead of special lowbed rail cars.

Cables and winches are used to secure the vans to the truck chassis and rail cars.

Truck-Rail Transport

A new development in coordinated truck-rail transportation was put into operation recently by Consolidated Freightways and Southern Pacific railroad between Portland, Ore., and Oakland, Calif. Container vans are hauled to the railhead on a truck chassis, lifted onto conventional rail flatcars by crane, hauled by rail to their destination, and then remounted on truck chassis for delivery to terminal or shipper

Truck Tonnages Show Improvement During Third Quarter of 1958

The volume of intercity tonnage handled by trucks during the third quarter of 1958 was 2.1 per cent lower than the same period in 1957.

The statistics, released by the American Trucking Associations, Inc., Research Department, show, however, that the third quarter figure for 1958 was an improvement over similar comparisons made between the first two quarters of this year and 1957.

The information is based on the operations of 2157 Class I and II Intercity Common and Contract Motor Carriers of Property. These carriers transported 79,779,456 tons of intercity freight in the third quarter of this year compared with 81,441,196 tons in the same 1957 period.

The greatest increase in tonnage was reported by the Southern Region with a 7.1 per cent boost over the third quarter period in 1957.

Increase Rail Car Need Seen by ASSAB in New York

Members of the Atlantic States Shippers Advisory Board, during a recent two-day session in New York, predicted that their freight car requirements for the first quarter of 1959 would be 5.3 per cent greater than those for the corresponding 1958 period.

Need for 692,473 cars is anticipated during the three-month period to accommodate traffic to and from points in the states of New York, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and the District of Columbia. Shipments of coal and coke should reach 104,932 carloads during the quarter. This is an increase of 1.2 per cent over the 1958 quarter.

Ports in Rail Rate Clash; New York Asks Equalization

The Port of New York Authority, the City of New York, the State of New York, and the Port of Philadelphia have actions before the Interstate Commerce Commission concerning rail rates.

The New York grouping has asked the ICC to equalize export-import rail rates between the Port of New York and Midwestern points with those applying through Baltimore and other competing North Atlantic ports.

The appeal for rate equality for the New Jersey-New York Port was made in a joint brief filed with the ICC in Washington in support of the action of major Port District railroads. The "unfair" economic advantage to the competing ports as a result of the lower inland rail rates as compared with the Port of New York was stressed.

In Philadelphia, the final brief in the lengthy legal proceeding to retain an 80-year-old rail rate differential opposed by New York and Boston has been filed by the Delaware River Port Authority before the ICC.

Lower Rates for Big Tank Cars Proposed by Railroad Executives

The Traffic Executives Association, Eastern Railroads, has proposed incentive rates to shippers who ship tank car commodities in large tank cars above 10,000 gal.

The incentive will be a reduction of 30 per cent under the usual charge for the first 10,000 gal. It is indicated that costs to the railroads for moving 20,000 gal in one car are less than handling the same load in two cars and that savings could be shared with shippers.

The Shippers' Car Line Division of ACF Industries, Inc., announced recently that it has placed two large-capacity tank cars (16,000 and 20,000-gal) in service for transporting food, petroleum, and chemical products. The cars are being used on a trip basis so that many industrial users can judge them in service.

"I AM A BURLINGTON MAN"

I am a painter at the Burlington Railroad's carbuilding plant at Havelock, Nebraska.

Here you see me putting the finishing touches on a $20,420,000 job—one of 2,325 new freight cars the Burlington built and purchased this year. These new cars will take their places among more than 20,000 Burlington box cars already in nationwide interchange service for efficient transportation of freight ranging from merchandise traffic to bulk commodities. Like all new Burlington box cars, this one is bright red—a new color that is distinctively Burlington.

Distinctively Burlington, too, is the kind of service you get from this railroad. The new cars are an example of our continuing investment to help us do a better job. Our entire plant—roadway, rolling stock, motive power, and other facilities—is designed and built for efficient transportation service, Everywhere West.

So when you see one of our new red box cars, think of the men and investment it represents. Remember, there are almost 30,000 of us, each proud to say—"I am a Burlington Man!"

From the sea-buoy in, distances and delays are shorter and sweeter for the shipper at Long Beach than in virtually any other West Coast harbor. A 3-mile fairway shortens time in from high seas. Protected waters limit surge. Open berths, easily approached, reduce tow charges. Fast, mechanized cargo handling works with the huge, clear-span transit sheds to cut demurrage and stacking costs. And fog, once a high cost factor to the Coast shipper, yields to the Port's radar-radio piloting control. Time's money. Ship via Long Beach and profit!

HOUSE SEEKS STRICTER POLICY—Congressional leaders may direct the ICC to toughen its policy on approving issues of securities. In a new report to Congress, the House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee recommends that the ICC, in endorsing an issue of securities, specify the uses of the proceeds. The report urges the writing of a code of conduct for the ICC and other regulatory agencies. On filing the report, the subcommittee ended its work.

AIRLINE PROFITS SLIM—Flying farther and faster, domestic airlines haven't broken through the profit barrier. In 1958, trunk airlines had record-high revenues of $1.5 billion. But earnings, 2 cents on the sales dollar, were only one-tenth of a cent above 1957 earnings, the Air Transport Assn. reveals. All-cargo carrier freight traffic dropped 31 per cent and express 56 per cent, reflecting the discontinuance of service by Slick Airways.

MA TO REPLACE OLD VESSELS—Oldership replacement is the principal project of the Maritime Administration this year. A lack of bulk carriers and the need for tramp replacement are the weak spots in the agency's programs now, Maritime Administrator C. G. Morse believes. His agency will attempt to keep tanker replacement moving. Morse underscores the need to consider requirements for additional roll-on-roll-off ships and reefer vessels.

ICC MAY ADVISE WORK LIMIT—Legislation to narrow its sphere of action, says the ICC, might be suggested to Congress. Though it is a rare event when a regulatory agency offers to trim its activities, the ICC is surveying its duties with this in view. It would propose legislation, if any is found needed, to limit ICC action to matters "fundamentally affecting transportation," the agency states. No date has been named for such recommendations.

LOADINGS ON WAY UP—Carloadings of rail freight in this quarter are to exceed those of the first quarter 1958. The 13 regional shippers advisory boards estimate the country as a whole will load 5.9 per cent more cars. The only drop is to be in the Northwest, as loadings nationally top 5.6 million. In a review of 1958, the Association of American Railroads places the year's loadings at 30.2 million cars, down nearly 15 per cent from 1957.

CARRIERS GET GRANTS—Thirty motor carriers in the nation's newest state have ICC grants of temporary operating authority. The ICC approved the Alaskan carriers' applications immediately after President Eisenhower's statehood proclamation in January. Carriers in other states have filed some 50 applications for temporary authority to operate between those states and Alaska. Those applications are under ICC consideration.

MH EQUIPMENT OUTLOOK GOOD—Government economists foresee a possible 20 per cent rise in materials handling equipment sales this year. The index reading on bookings in the first nine months of 1958 was almost 109 (the year 1954 equals 100). Production and shipment of more construction materials this year probably will boost handling equipment demand. Mounting labor costs also will raise the sales potential. A favorable factor may be tight money.

ICC TO REVIEW REA RATES—An ICC investigation of a proposed 3½ per cent advance in Railway Express Agency rates has been launched. The REA had asked the increase on less-than-carload shipments. It would have been in addition to a boost of 15 per cent on much class- and commodity-rate traffic allowed late in 1958 (DISTRIBUTION AGE, December, Page 19). This latest rate-increase bid is opposed by the National Retail Merchants Association and other groups.

METAL CANS GAIN — Manufacturers' shipments of metal cans this year may top the 4.7 million tons of 1958 by 2 to 5 per cent. Officials of the U. S. Commerce Department anticipate a gain of 2 to 6 per cent in the use of fruit and vegetable cans. The demand for cans for beer, coffee, meat, and detergents will rise. Canners of dairy products may reduce their requirements, but a higher demand for lard and shortening cans is predicted.

RAIL REVENUES LEAD—Operating revenues for U. S. railroads, the ICC reports, continue well ahead of those for other carriers. Reporting to Congress on the year ended last June 30, the ICC lists railroad revenues at more than $10.1 billion. This amount is well over half the $18.2 billion recorded by the eight carrier groups under ICC regulation. Freight truckers were next highest, with $6 billion in revenues. For all the groups, the operating revenues were almost $1 billion less than in the previous year.

QUESTION

IN THEIR OWN TRUE INTEREST . . .

Shouldn't every group in the transportation industry pursue policies like these in 1959?

- Make no effort to soak a competing form of transportation with more taxes in the hope of securing a competitive advantage. The shipper pays such taxes on behalf of the ultimate consumer.

- Attempt to better its business and relative position in transport by striving energetically to improve its service to shippers and receivers.

- Work more closely with other forms of transport in the interest of the shipper and of the country as a whole.

AND WOULDN'T SUCH POLICIES BE GREATLY IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST?

As President of ATA, I can say with complete confidence that we will be found adhering to these policies. They are in line with our basic principles and our historical position.

Go, van! Go! And this brawny new Dodge hauler can do just that. It has the extra push (up to 210 hp.) to whisk a giant payload through bustling city traffic right on schedule. The oversized four-piston brakes to bring your heaviest cargo to an on-a-dime stop. And the short, short turning radius to wheel into a tight loading area as nimbly as a much smaller truck!

But then . . . that's typical of the dependable Dodge truck you choose—from 4,250-lb. G.V.W. pick-ups to 65,000-lb. G.C.W. Power Giants. Won't you let your Dodge dealer show you all the exclusive Dodge truck features?

today, it's real smart to choose Dodge Trucks

This 315-cu.-in. DISTRIBUTION SERVICE, INC.

AMERICAN CHAIN OF WAREHOUSES

From a modest venture 40 years ago, to more than three and a half million square feet of storage space today, is a definite sign of progress.

Of greater significance, however, is that it emphasizes the personalized Lehigh services, constant during those 40 years, that has gained the confidence of many of America's major brand-name merchandisers and leading manufacturers.

In those 40 years, there have been amazing changes in warehousing methods and facilities. Today, Lehigh sets the pace for complete distribution and storage services that are second to none.

As part of these services, Lehigh's experienced personnel—teams of experts—are ready, able and willing to act as consultants with you in setting up a distribution plan, create a program of packaging from bulk storage, or a combination of facilities use most economical for you. In flexibility of operations and extensive facilities, Lehigh Divisions offer a variety of services centered on economical distribution, which include more than just transport and storage.

Located in the heart of the world's greatest distribution center, these Lehigh services are a vital help to users in tapping and exploiting this lush marketing area of more than 24,000,000 people—metropolitan areas of Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, and the Northern New Jersey-Greater New York area.

Products handled are as varied as man's needs—lumber from Oregon—wood pulp from Tokyo—dates from Iraq—raw chemicals from Texas—insecticides of local origin—coffee from Columbia—wines from California—automobiles from abroad—baled cotton from the South—food products from many areas for local distribution—and too many others to list.

Ask for a plan, suited to your needs, that will show you how to use Lehigh's strategic distribution points most effectively and also how other Lehigh facilities may be used to your advantage.

This newly formed affiliate of Lehigh Warehouse and Transportation Company is a fully integrated division operating warehouses and storage areas at Port Newark. Operations include the unloading of ships and transporting of goods from pier to warehouse or other storage, or delivery as the customer specifies; lumber handling and storage in a large area devoted exclusively to this material; stevedoring by Maher Stevedoring Corp., another division of Lehigh; fumigation; and clerical services such as accurate inventory control as specified by customer. FACILITIES include nine warehouses (from ONE warehouse eleven years ago); a large fleet of lumber carriers; temporary, permanent or S.I.T.; a large fleet of trucks and trailers to distribute products of customers; and other facilities auxiliary to the above. A Lehigh Special Service: Separation of bulk and packaged materials in different warehouses. Baled cotton in one warehouse; large drums of flammable chemicals in another warehouse; packaged food products in another warehouse; rare woods in another, etc. Each warehouse is supervised by a team who know the special problems of storing the particular commodities for which they are responsible. Distribution of goods by Lehigh from Port Newark overcomes delays from traffic congestion prevalent in other areas; integrated services provide the advantage of favorable trucking rates; adequate man-power and mechanized equipment provide quick loading or unloading—a strategic distribution point for large food chains, manufacturers, importers and branches of national producers of raw materials or complete products.

These services offered by Lehigh at the modern Port of Newark provide a steady flow of goods through the port—a smooth two-way interchange between ship and shore, rail and trailer, warehouse and retail counter.

Are the railroads doing anything to improve freight interchanges?

On the Rock Island, Yes

to quote J. B. Buffalo, Chicago Division Superintendent

"A criticism often aimed at railroads," says Mr. Buffalo, "is that delays in switching from one line to another frequently nullify any claims the railroads make of fast, on-time performance.

"Let me set the record straight about the Rock Island. We're doing all we can to avoid delays of this kind by providing direct interchange with other lines at key points.

"On the Chicago Division, for instance, we can advance shippers' freight up to 500 miles by providing direct interchanges with the B&O, NYC, Wabash, C&EI, C&O (PM Dist.), CSS&SB, Erie, Monon, NKP, PRR, B&OCT, GTW, IHB, EJ&E, GM&O, and MC. We certainly urge shippers to take advantage of these direct interchange facilities and save themselves a substantial amount of priceless shipping time."

The Chicago Division, moreover, is not the only one offering direct interchange facilities. Here are other principal junctions where the Rock Island connects directly with other railroads:

Alexandria, La.—L&A, MoP, T&NO and T&P

Amarillo, Texas—Santa Fe and FW&D

Dallas, Texas—FW&D, GC&SF, L&A, MKTofT, Frisco, StLSW, T&NO, and T&P

Denver, Colo.—D&RGW, C&S, and Santa Fe through joint CRI&P-D&RGW North Yard

Pullman, Colo.—Direct with UP at Pullman Junction (Denver), Colo.

Eunice, La.—MoP and T&NO

Fort Worth, Texas—FW&D, GC&SF, MoP, MKTofT, StLSW, T&NO, T&P, and Frisco

Kansas City, Mo.—Santa Fe, CB&Q, CGW, CMStP&P, GM&O, KCS, MKT, MoP, KCT Ry., Frisco, UP, and Wabash

Memphis, Tenn.—IC, L&N, Frisco, and Sou Ry.

Omaha, Nebr.—C&NW, CB&Q, CGW, CMStP&P, CStPM&O, IC, MoP, SOT Ry., UP, and Wabash

Tucumcari, N. M.—Southern Pacific

Is the Rock Island doing anything to improve freight interchanges? We think so. And we're sure you'll think so after you route your next shipment via Rock Island.

If you have any comments, pro or con, regarding our rates or services, we invite you to discuss them with your Rock Island traffic representative.

CHICAGO 5, ILL.

On the Line—

Let's Whip Up A Storm!

It must warm the hearts of millions of Americans to see the Congress working on labor reform laws. This could be an historic year.

First came the Kennedy-Ervin bill, a milder version of the 1958 Kennedy-Ives bill. Then came the more comprehensive bill sponsored by Sen. Goldwater et al; a formal package of the reforms proposed by President Eisenhower.

What will emerge is anybody's guess. Most legislators know how the labor leaders feel about any reform measure. They are not sure about the rank-and-file membership; especially after what happened last election in five states where right-to-work laws were offered.

On the other hand, the muck and corruption uncovered by the McClellan hearings stare them grimly in the face. The senator has over 75,000 letters from union members urging reform.

The duty of the Congress is clear. An aroused nation is its conscience.

The temper of the Congress is quite good now for comprehensive reform. But delays in bringing such a bill to a vote could cause some change of mind; labor leaders would have needed time for political pressure.

Corruption is a malignant growth on the body of good labor organization. But, just as no surgeon would remove a piece at a time, the Congress will be wise to approve all of the 20 points requested by the president.

As in the past, the danger is that the legislators will not receive the support of their constituents. If ever, now is the time they must hear the voice of the people—YOU!

Don't let the goons intimidate honest legislators. Don't take victory of "truth and right" for granted. Don't discourage courageous statesmanship by neglecting your personal encouragement. Don't let your silence give consent to the will of corrupt pressure.

This must be YOUR year of action. If you never wrote a letter to your senator and congressman, do it now. If you don't know their names, contact your local public library or newspaper.

And, by the way, write a letter to your newspaper. It will publish it to encourage others.

Your letter could start a powerful chain that could whip up a welcome storm in Washington.

The Man We Admire

Just as much as we delight in relating a good business success story, we burn intensely when some one belittles initiative.

In the course of a recent business luncheon, we repeated the story of how a materials handling engineer was so frustrated by his company's general retrenchment order that he started his own business. (See LINE, December 1958.) During the discouraging part of the yarn, one luncheon companion burst in with a loud guffaw and a vigorous slap on the table.

"That's just why I don't lie awake nights trying to solve problems or dream up new ideas," he said laughingly. "If you think up a good one, you automatically will get the objection that it will cost a lot of money to put it to work. To get money out of a boss is tougher than thinking up the idea.

"When you get turned down, all your precious personal time is wasted. Worse yet, if something goes wrong, does the boss let you have it? Boy, oh boy! He'll raise the dead with his screaming. He'll go through a second thinking routine and make like you fouled up things on purpose. He'll act like you stuck your hand in his wallet and deliberately threw his money away.

"Not me, brother! I never go looking for trouble."

We're sure that he would have liked to have crawled into a hole when we finished that success story.

This attitude of avoiding experiment and experience because of possible difficulties is quite common. Too many department heads gained their jobs more by seniority rather than by merit and achievement. The man we admire is like the one that said,

"I'm not as good as I ought to be,
I'm not as good as I want to be,
But, thank God, I'm better than I used to be."

Commodity Moves

To The Editor:

The Texas Attorney General recently ruled that the movement of any commodity between adjoining municipalities is under the jurisdiction of the Railroad Commission. This also applies to the movement between any municipality and adjacent military installations.

Hence, local moving and local cartage from one incorporated town into another, even though one completely surrounds the other, requires a permit, and charges therefore must be based upon tariffs duly filed with the Commission.

Many of the members of our industry desire to attack this ruling in court, and it is in this connection that we are writing you to ascertain whether you have knowledge of a similar situation arising and being resolved.

I have made quite a review of late and leading cases which were in the recent past written up for publication, but I find no parallel case.

However, the late case of State of Missouri v C.E.S. Truck Lines, 312 S.W. (2d) 363 appears to have some bearing on this subject of law. And again see Whitman, 398 S.W. (2d) 884, where the higher court held that no permit is necessary when the truck owner hauls freight to a purchaser to whom the sale was made.—Leo. T. Parker, DA Legal Consultant.

Warehouse Liability

To The Editor:

It has been the practice of warehouses in this city to retain damaged goods as received in freight cars until such time as the railroads see fit to have a salvage agent call for same.

Of course these goods do not belong to the shipper after the inspection and are not held for railroads on a warehouse receipt.

So far nothing has ever happened to goods so that all have been turned over to salvage agents without any further damage. However, something could happen in that goods could become further damaged or lost through pilferage. Now, the question is—what liability is involved as regards the warehouse toward these items?

A. M. Glynn
Manager
Terminal Warehouse
Worcester, Mass.

If the warehouseman has control of the car containing the damaged merchandise, he is a lawful bailee. In other words, the ordinary warehouseman's liability is in effect.—Leo T. Parker, DA Legal Consultant.

WAREHOUSE SITES "STOCKPILED"
on a delay-free transcontinental route!

In and around Peoria, Illinois, in the heart of the rich mid-west market, are 6400 acres of land zoned for warehousing and industrial use. Over 2700 acres of this land have been purchased and "stockpiled" by the T.P. & W. Railroad for ready availability at any time.

Unexcelled for fast network transportation by rail, water or highway, the area is fast gaining a deserved reputation as an ideal distribution center.

The Peoria area is served by 15 railroads, multi-pronged highway outlets easily accessible by way of a new Illinois River bridge-highway, an expanding air terminal, and the Illinois waterway for completely flexible transportation facilities. In rail transit particularly the location is ideal for the T.P. & W.'s direct route across the state speeds shipments without delay at congested East-West gateways.

To expedite selling and cut distribution costs, investigate Peoria as a distribution center for your products. For confidential and personal assistance write or call me at Peoria 9-3941.

I am working toward a master's degree at New York University Graduate School of Business Administration, where I am majoring in transportation.

I am writing a thesis on water transportation trends and expect to devote most of it to the container trend.

From a bibliography I obtained, I understand that articles on this subject appear in Vol. 55, No. 1 January 1956 issue and Vol. 55, No. 11, November 1956 issue.

Please advise how I may obtain these issues. Also if you have similar articles in later issues it would be appreciated if you would also advise how I might obtain those issues.

Italian Port Study

To the Editor:

I am hoping that this letter reaches you. I need copies of any articles you may have available describing the shipment of highway trailers by sea. Also recall there is a firm like that in Florida.

I am also interested in the use of containers on ocean-going ships as well as use of pallets on through shipments. I shall appreciate any information you can send to me air mail.

I am making port studies in Italy. As a materials handling consultant, I have had much experience in American and foreign ports.

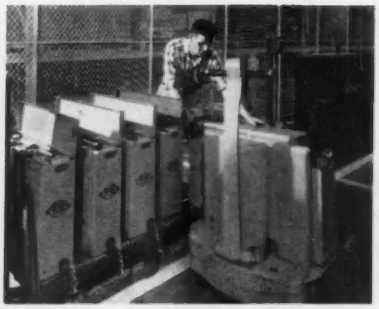
C&D Slyver-Clad powers smooth, clean distribution system at new Purity Stores warehouse*

COME SEE US IN '59 — THE MATERIAL HANDLING INSTITUTE'S EXPOSITION AT NYC — JUNE 9-12 — CLEVELAND PUBLIC AUDITORIUM

LOWER OPERATING EXPENSES, shown by penetrating cost-comparison studies made by Purity Stores engineers, favored electric trucks, when the fast-growing West Coast food chain planned its new 254,000-square-foot warehouse at Burlingame, Calif. Purity Stores maintains its own smoothly functioning distribution system supplying 100 stores. Handling large quantities of fresh produce and dairy items in confined storage areas, it is imperative that warehousemen avoid contaminating fumes. In an efficient two-shift electric handling operation, dependable power is a must. Purity Stores powers its fleet of electric trucks with C&D high-capacity Slyver-Clad ® batteries—exclusively.

RAPID "REFUELING"—C&D batteries are designed to provide sufficient capacity for maximum life while operating on a 10-hour shift without recharging. At end of shift driver can change his own battery. Integral skids on bottom of battery facilitate battery exchange. Trucks are "refueled" without delay.



ROLLS RIGHT ON—Automatic charging equipment saves time and labor. Maintenance man merely plugs charger lead into battery. After the required amount of charge is reached, charger shuts itself off automatically. No danger of over-charging. Battery is simply rolled back onto truck. Hoists are eliminated.

EASY PREVENTIVE MAINTENANCE—Purity Stores follows proper battery maintenance procedures for long, trouble-free battery life. Exclusive C&D Five-Fold Slyver-Clad plate design virtually eliminates sediment. Active materials are kept working longer . . . stronger. Proof that: "C&D is your better battery buy."

You . . . and the Union

How to keep a union out of your company or how to live with a union that has gotten in are problems which face businessmen every day. This writer lists ten rules for a year-round program to deal with the union problem in your industry

By Granville M. Alley Jr.

THE PROBLEM of the union, to many businesses, means keeping the union out. To others in management, it means living with the union that is already in.

In either case, there are certain positive steps that an employer can take to help his labor dealings.

To understand these steps, you must realize that there is nothing magic about the union organizer. He is just a human being, a salesman. To be successful, he has to have something to sell. Joining a union, collective action, and higher wages are all virtues of his product. However, the average American is an individualist; these are not points that sell him.

The union organizer has only one commodity and that is management mistakes and employe grievances. This is what sells your employes and keeps them sold.

What are these mistakes and grievances? The natural place to look for an answer is the plants that have become victims of Union organizers. Where they failed will provide an answer for the non-union companies.

What about union companies? Where do they look? Their own grievance record—the complaints filed and what caused them—is the best answer.

A major failing on the part of management of both organized and unorganized companies has been the inability to recognize that labor unions and employe relations are problems just like other business problems. Business must give time to them.

It is most important that employers recognize that labor unions are a problem now. Once industry does that, its problem is 90 per cent over.

In about 80 per cent of the labor cases handled by our law firm for non-union companies, we were not consulted until after the union had started its organizational drive. In about the same percentage of cases for unionized companies, we were not consulted until the grievance reached the arbitration stage.

It was only at this point that the companies recognized that they had the problem. They had the problem all along but they just didn't know about it. They were too busy with other matters.

The non-union company is thrown into battle with the chips against it. Its employe relations are in terrible shape or non-existant. The majority of its employes have signed up with the union. A strike is imminent. A labor election at this moment would mean sure defeat.

If that company had recognized that it had a labor problem and started work six months or a year before, it probably would not have had the union situation in the first instance. If it had, it could have coped with it and disposed of it in no time.

Therefore, my first recommendation is:

If you don't want to be unionized, or if you want to live with the union, recognize the problem, put it in with your other problems, and start working on it.

You will never have more time than you have today. Many companies think their employe relations program is in top shape. Don't think it—be sure.

Leading the list as a cause of unionization is poor supervision. This is also one of the major causes for grievances in organized companies. The most important single factor in good employe relations is the line supervision. Line supervision means the supervisor who deals directly with your employes. Why is he so important? He is the point where the employe meets the company and where the policies of the company are carried out. No matter how good your policies are, if they are improperly carried out, it is as bad or worse than having no policy at all.

It is at the line supervisor level that trouble and grievances first arise.

Another common mistake is in selection of supervisors. In most cases we pick the supervisor from among the present employes—the employe who does the job best. But this should not be the criterion. After the employe becomes the supervisor, he will not be doing the work. He will be directing others. Therefore, he should be chosen on his ability to deal with people—not his ability to do the work himself.

Case histories show that the company must get rid of the supervisor who plays favorites. To punish one employe and not another, to lighten the load of one and increase the work load of another is to invite a union. A supervisor who plays favorites will organize more employes than the most ardent and experienced union organizer. Favoritism causes more grievances than any other factor. Thus, the second recommendation is:

Get rid of all supervisors who play favorites.

Although we hear about the wonderful union wages and how many holidays union employes receive, the real selling point of most unions is job security.

What is job security? It is limited protection from unreasonable discharge and disportionate treatment. It recognizes length of service as a factor in changes in working conditions.

Can management provide job security? Certainly it can. It gives the job in the first place and it has the power to take it away. Fair exercise of that power is job security. Correction of supervision will go a long way toward elimination of job security problems.

Another common error of management is failure to keep employes informed of what is going on. Your employes are interested in the economic condition of the company. They want to know what the possibilities are for steady employment. Why? Like others, they are making plans for the future—buying on time or planning to send children to college. They want to know if they can do these things and this depends on steady employment.

Also, they want to know about the company's operations. When a new machine is brought in what happens? The employe in that department immediately thinks it is going to replace him. In most instances, it will not. It may even create jobs. But, if you don't tell the employe this, he begins to worry. He feels insecure, and if you don't relieve him of this feeling, he goes to the union for help. Therefore, the third recommendation is:

"Prior to any union campaign, one should work out the procedure he will follow when the union drive begins."

Keep your employe informed about what is going on at your company.

The fourth recommendation is:

Discharge every employe who is doing a poor and unsatisfactory job.

The union organizer always starts his campaign with the disgruntled worker, the one the company meant to discharge long ago. This is the kind of worker the organizer uses to spearhead his drive. He can't interest the happy and conscientious worker. But the poor worker knows he is a chiseler and is looking for someone to blame for his shortcomings.

If you don't get rid of him before the union gets in, strange to say, the union will after it gets in. It needs this employe to help organize your plant. But the union business agent knows that this employe, in time, means trouble for him. The agent knows that satisfying employes, handling grievances, and negotiating contracts is going to be a lot harder with this employe around.

Another type of employe who is equally dangerous is the overqualified man. He does a very good job but is too good for the job. There are no higher positions to which to promote him. Thus, he has extra time on his hands. The union organizer comes along and this employe is interested quickly in the union, both as a source of prestige and as an outlet for extra energy.

One plant, recently had union trouble as a direct result of a man like this. He has been weaned away from the union in this manner:

His primary outside interest, aside from the union, was sports. The company started a sports program and gave him a big part in it. He is now so involved in that program that he has forgotten all about the union.

Most companies that have fallen victims to union organizers have not treated their employes as individuals. Primarily, one shows that he considers the employe an individual by recognizing his accomplishments. Employes must be treated as individuals in our contacts with them. It is surprising how often the real cause behind the grievance is the desire for recognition.

This desire is a very real thing. Take, for example, this case. At Reynolds Tobacco Co., there is a group of employes who go through the tobacco pulling out lint, sticks, stems, etc. as the tobacco passes on a conveyor. The lint and waste are kept by each girl as she works.

One girl started finding more waste than five other girls put together. The foreman would come by and this girl always would have five times as much lint as the others. The company knew how much tobacco was graded by each employe. It all came from the same bins. They checked into the matter and this is what they found. The girl was not satisfied with the little bit of waste she was collecting, so she brought sticks, stems, and lint to work with her and dumped it into the tobacco. Her desire for recognition in her job made her do this.

"Now you should begin to gather arguments and facts that can . . . convince your employes that remaining non-union is preferable . . ."

In fact, some employes in their race for recognition will do harmful things. If they can't get recognition for being the best, they'll get it for being the worst. Certainly a reprimand is a form of recognition.

A company can show employes it considers them important individuals by taking an interest in their problems. Although these problems may seem small and trivial to us, they are most important and sometimes tragic to the employe. Another way to show an interest is to perform little services. For example, offer your bookkeeper to help the employes with their tax returns. Or, when one of the children is sick, send the child a toy. That 75-cent toy will bring more goodwill than $1000 spent in many other ways.

One of the easiest and best ways to treat the employe as an individual is to show him that you know him. Greet him with a smile and take a few seconds to converse with him. He will appreciate this individual attention.

The Industrial Revolution of the last century made changes not only in the method of production but also in the work performed by employes. Mass production has resulted in a basic change in the relationship of the employe to his work.

In the day of the craftsman, he designed his product, selected and purchased the material, built the product, and delivered it to the customer. He received satisfaction from his work and from seeing his customer satisfied.

Today, this has changed. The employe plays only a small part in the creation of any product. He may never see the end product and, certainly, he doesn't see the satisfied customer. Today work is a relationship to people. Unless the company recognizes this change by substituting recognition of the employe for the satisfaction received by the craftsman, the union will. Too often the union is a substitute for proper recognition and individual treatment. The fifth recommendation is:

Treat employes as individuals by giving them recognition.

Another common error is paying employes different rates for doing the same job. This difference in pay may result from length of service, merit increases, or even favoritism increases.

"Band together with other companies in your home area and cooperate in the solution of this common problem."

Unions long ago learned that equal treatment of all employes is one of the magic keys to successful labor relations.

Business has been slow in learning the fact. It has taken refuge in the false belief that unions want a single rate for a given classification because the union wants to stifle initiative—to have the poor worker make as much as the good worker.

The union wants it that way to reduce grievances.

This employe psychology also can work for business. For example: One warehouse employe makes $1.25 per hour and another $1.45. The company may be able to justify this difference by saying that one is more efficient or has been there longer. Probably, the lower paid worker is doing just as good a job as the higher paid one. But whether this is true or not, one thing is certain—you will never be able to justify the difference to the lower-paid employe.

So what happens? This employe looks around the company and finds similar inequalities. The employes who are dissatisfied then get together and go to the union

How to Get the Most from

The use of warehouses as national distribution centers is only one of the important factors to consider when shopping for the "right" warehouse operation, says this executive of the Golden Dipt Div., Meletio Co., food processors

PROFITS are not only created by efficient manufacturing and sales methods. They also accrue from close control of distribution costs and related expenses. Quite often, in fact, the latter gains may be the difference between business success and failure.

For example, the use of public warehouses as national distribution centers is a sound principle of merchandising. But maintenance of local stocks has its special problems. As an instance, small shipments to a warehouse can be very costly. They can boost the price and product out of the market.

When that occurs, some firms are prone to conclude that the use of public warehouses is unprofitable. This, of course, is faulty logic. The fault lies in the belief that local distribution costs cannot be controlled.

Factors Affecting Local Costs

There are a number of reasons why local distribution costs get out of line. One of these is lack of proper inventory control. Ample stocks for peak demands always must be on hand. Frequent rush shipments from the factory, to make up waiting orders, show poor control. Also, the cost of those shipments will be out of line. Sales as well as profits will suffer.

Other reasons may be poor traffic control and payment of needlessly high transportation costs.

Local drayage charges often are higher than need be Product handling charges in the distribution centers can be out of line, too. These and other factors can be controlled. But they need constant review, study and supervision.

Look at Freight Rates

Any review of transportation costs will reveal that the major items can be broken down into interstate, intrastate, and local drayage. Not only is it a must to have a thorough knowledge of tariffs but also of the classifications upon which the rates are based. Countless examples can be furnished to show that shippers lose hundreds of thousands of dollars because of wrong descriptions of their products.

But the matter doesn't end there. A thorough review also will show that those charges are figured on different bases throughout the country. Many rate classifications on the West Coast, for instance, differ from those along the Gulf Coast and/or the Atlantic Coast.

Further, every shipper must keep abreast of rate changes. They occur daily throughout the country. It is not enough to have a recent tariff. It is necessary to find out how many supplements to it have been published. Also, it is part of good control to watch for advance notices of increases.

To find the most dependable carrier at the lowest cost is a real challenge. But the problem can be approached from several angles. Pooled rail car or truck shipments is an example. It is possible to work out shipments to as many as three warehouses from one car. The rate savings over single shipments can be very worth-while.

Rush lcl and ltl shipments have no place in a well managed distribution system. In addition to being expensive, they can lead to a stop-gap operation habit. This will keep the local salesmen and customer on edge and open the door to better service by competition.

Except for some special products, any item that does not turn over within 45 to 60 days will not show the profit anticipated. Regular pooled shipments permit closer control of stocks, at low cost, at two or three warehouses at the same time. Finally, such control allows a decrease in capital investment in each distribution area. This also reduces interest charges on stored products.

A major item of expense is the high intrastate trucking rate from warehouse points to the customer. Our analysis showed instances of as high as $1.25 to $1.75/cwt., with a minimum of $3.00 to $4.00 for comparatively short hauls. This problem can be solved by employing warehouses in cities where drayage can be obtained at lower rates. It also offers added inducement to your customer in faster delivery service or pickup allowances. In some states, we have stored in as

A Warehouseman's Suggestions

Public Warehouse Service

After analyzing several faults and deficiencies of public warehousing, this public warehouse official moves to establish a new standard of excellence in service and responsibility for industry members to aim at, and buyers to expect

COMPANIES in the public warehouse field usually offer a variety of services besides the basic operations of storage and handling. These they perform with varying degrees of efficiency.

Operators who have been in this business for some time and have benefited from the educational program of a trade association—particularly the American Warehousemen's Association — function as respectable representatives of the trade. However, the poor practices or ethics of a few reflect on the industry in general.

During the depression, some bankers were booed when introduced at service club meetings and public gatherings. I do not recall that any warehousemen were publicly booed. Anyone in a position of trust, such as a banker or warehouseman, has a greater obligation to the public for his actions and integrity. That is why the American Warehousemen's Association slogan "Choose Your Warehouseman as You Would Your Banker" has considerable significance.

When purchasing something tangible, one can usually examine it to make quality and price comparisons without much trouble. But it is not so easy when buying public warehouse service.

A broad knowledge is required to analyze a proposal properly. Loss of customers due to poor service or financial losses due to claims, shortages, or lack of legal liability insurance often influence the judgment of a person selecting a warehouse.

One of the most disappointing things is to find there is a "sleeper" in the transaction. To overcome this, an alert warehouseman asks a lot of questions about the shipper or storer's requirements. In this way he is able to prepare a complete quotation giving rates which are fair and commensurate with the service required. Each customer's needs may differ. Because of this, rates are custom-made to fit the particular situation.

Storage is usually quoted on a per unit, per square foot, per cubic foot or per hundred-weight basis for a month or fraction thereof. Handling in and out is usually quoted on a per unit, per hundred-weight, hourly rate, or per cubic foot basis. Package rate tables for storage and handling are used to compute proper unit rates for commodities of various dimensions, weights and densities.

Most warehouses set descriptions of their accessorial or incidental services in fine print only for the sake of condensing data on a quotation form. Such services required usually are charged as additional items by those needing shipping, payments on delivery, payment of freight, local cartage, etc.

Many companies which use warehouses nationally have prepared comprehensive descriptions of the commodities to be handled or stored. These show corresponding dimensions, weights, cubical content, estimated volume, values, and special characteristics. These help when you are working with known factors. They result in the buyer getting better service with less chance of any misunderstandings later.

To aid the buyer of warehouse services, before selecting the company with which he will entrust his merchandise, here are some things of importance to check. Some are things to look for while others are things to avoid.

LOOK FOR:

1. LOCATION — Important for quick access to other freight terminals, ease of pickup, lack of congestion, away from flood danger areas or areas where break-ins or pilferage are likely to occur. Convenient to the type of trade being served. Fast withdrawals for will-call trade.

2. TYPE OF BUILDING—Fire resistant construction, adequate doors for truck and rail capacity, large capacity elevators if a multi-story building, and reasonably good floor loads. Watchman or burglar alarm service.

3. ORGANIZATION—Modern type handling equipment and efficient office procedures to perform prompt handling of orders, inventory control reports, etc. . . .

4. PERSONNNEL — Sufficient experienced personnel to handle the volume required; supervised by managers (preferably owners or stockholders) close enough to your problems to give them personal attention.

5. FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY—Financially able to meet any claims

New Developments in Sugar Shipping Abroad

From Sweden to Australia, this writer finds signs of change in the methods of handling sugar. From Queensland comes a report on bulk sugar by the shipload instead of by the bag

By John Grindrod, DA European Correspondent

FROM LORRY loads to ship loads and from Australia to Sweden, new signs of progress have appeared in the handling of sugar.

The new ocean shipping development was in Queensland, Australia. The first mechanized bulk loading installation for raw sugar in that city was completed at Mackay in time for the 1957 crushing season. In the first six months of operation 26 ships were loaded with 250,000 tons. The ships averaged less than 48 hours in port, of which the actual loading time was under 24 hours.

Under the old system of hand loading bagged sugar, each ship would have required three weeks.

This installation is only one of many developments which point to the eventual handling of most Australian sugar in bulk. The conversion to bulk handling was begun in 1954 when relatively small bulk installations were completed at two of the Colonial Sugar Refining Company's mills in northern New South Wales.

During 1955, a large-scale mechanized bulk-unloading-and-receiving installation was completed at the Sydney refinery. Apart from the sugar arriving from New South Wales by small coasters, bulk cargoes for these refineries and for export destinations in the United Kingdom were loaded by bleeding bagged sugar in ship's holds at Queensland ports.

The present rate of loading at Queensland is about 600 tons per hour of actual loading time, compared with about 65 tph under the old system. The new terminal, constructed by the Mackay Harbour Board on behalf of the Queensland Sugar Board, is now the main terminal for storing, and loading about 250,000 tons of raw sugar each season. Claimed to be the biggest bulk sugar loading installation in the world, it holds about 150,000 tons. Construction took three years.

Sugar is delivered in bulk to the terminal, which is operated by 22 men, by rail and road. It is received at a rate of up to 500 tons per hour. The bulk sugar arrives from eight mills in the district.

That coming by rail is delivered in covered steel-framed sugar boxes to the terminal siding. A locomotive marshalls the trucks into the receiving station where the sugar is weighed and dumped into a receiving hopper. The hopper is fitted with a bottom pan conveyor, which passes the sugar on to a belt conveyor. Thence it moves by way of a transfer tower to the top of the main 150,000-ton storage shed.

The shed encloses four acres of floor space. At the apex of the building, a shuttle conveyor, 80 ft above floor level distributes the sugar to various locations in the shed. The conveyor operates at 5 tons a minute.

Reclamation is by electric shovels. These deposit the sugar into a line of 76 hoppers let into the center of the floor of the main shed. The hoppers feed the material to a 42-in. wide conveyor belt in a tunnel running the full length of the shed.

The flow of sugar from the hoppers is operated manually from the tunnel. The belt travels at the rate of 450 fpm and delivers sugar to the weigh station in the precincts of the wharf at a rate of 600 tons an hour.

Belt conveyors also are used to carry the sugar from the weigh tower to the mobile gantry loading station. There it is transferred by tripper onto the gantry delivery belt. A telescopic chute which hangs from the boom of the 140-ton gantry loading crane is required to cope with the 21-ft tides.

The sugar from the conveyors falls down the chute. At the end of the chute a mechanical thrower or trimmer, which can be rotated in a full circle, distributes the sugar to any part of the ship's hold. Hand trimming thus is eliminated.

One man operates the loader from a portable push-button control board. The loader is mobile, traversing the full 500-ft length of the wharf. It discharges sugar into the holds at a rate of 10 tons a minute.

On the opposite side of the globe from Australia, another stride has been made in simplifying the transportation of sugar.

A new type automatic weighing system, adaptable for use in many branches of distribution, has been installed at the Arlov Sugar Factory in the south of Sweden. Largely electronic in operation, it is used by AB. Stathmos, of Eskilstuna.

The installation consists of two lorry weighbridges, one for weighing the lorries and trailers loaded with sugar beet and the other for weighing the empty vehicles. When the loaded lorry arrives from the farm, it is driven onto the first weighbridge. At the same time, certain code figures are tabulated on the keyboard. These include the numbers representing the farmer, district, lorry, estimated quantity, etc. When the weight is registered, these codes are transferred to the delivery form.

After the truck is unloaded, its tare weight is taken on Scale No. 2, this being registered on the same form. A copy of this form is handed to the farmer's representative as a receipt and all the weighing data is transferred to a tape perforator.

Each day, the tape is sent to the head office of the sugar factory. There a tape-record machine reproduces the data on punch cards. From these cards, all the accounting, bookkeeping, and statistic recording are carried out automatically.●

Public Warehouse Operating Aids

Here are some ideas for building and storage improvements which have helped public warehouses perform their service

In constructing the Wilmington Bonded Warehouse, at Wilmington, N. C., openings were cast into the wall for future expansion. This permits knocking out the center of the concrete panel to create a clean, square opening

The Fred Pagels Storage Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, when eliminating its room storage system, found it had on hand a considerable number of metal-clad doors and no use for them. Then the company realized that they could be converted into dollies and used for stacking, loading, and storing household goods brought in for short-term or in-transit storage. The picture above shows the dollies while stored. Below you see dollies in use

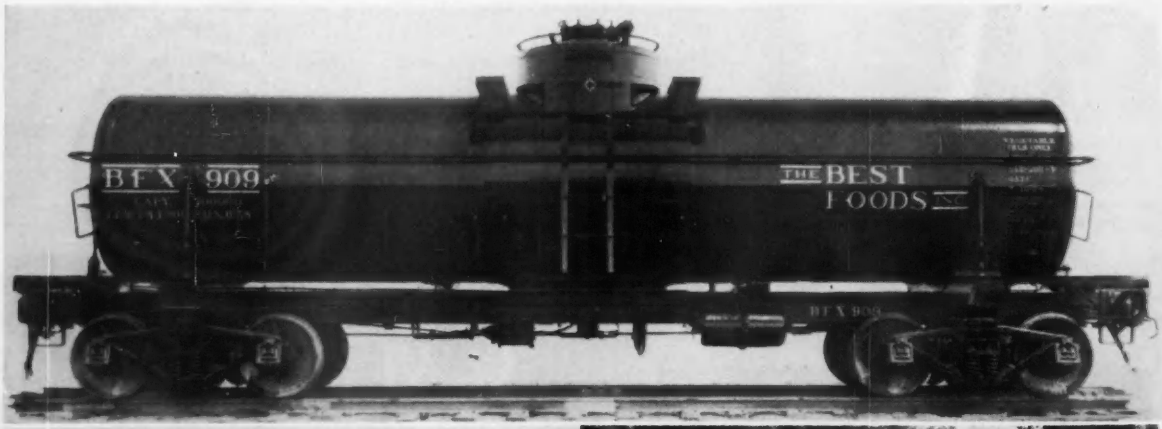
INDUSTRY SURVEY

The TM Talks on the Private Car Trend



THE TERM "private cars" to many traffic managers no longer means "company-owned cars," but instead means cars which he may hire from one of several large railroad car leasing firms.

However, the industry-owned car has not passed out of the picture. The Interstate Commerce Commission reports that as of the end of 1957 there were over 300,000 privately owned railroad cars, including those owned by leasing companies.

The ICC, in dealing with this type of equipment divides it into three groups. Class 3 consists of companies owning between 10 and 100 cars. The report for 1956 showed 112 owners in this class with 4237 cars. Class 2, owners with 100-1000 cars, consisted of 75 companies with 29,204 cars. Class 1, the companies with 1000 cars or more, consists of 26 owners with 259,531 cars.

The editors of DISTRIBUTION AGE studied these reports and decided that a survey of traffic departments using these cars might be helpful to others in the traffic field.

First attention was turned to Class 1. However, we quickly decided against a survey here. Of the close to 259,531 cars listed, only a little over 23,000 were actually owned and operated by industrial firms to carry their own products. A further examination showed that the industrial car owners consisted of eight oil companies, two meat packers, and two other firms.

Why do you own private cars? What are the advantages and disadvantages? Why do you continue to operate your company cars? Who handles your car maintenance? These are some of the questions answered by TMs in this article Therefore, we have centered our study in Class 2. This group is mainly manufacturers. These 75 firms have about $124 million invested in railroad equipment.

In this group, there is a wide variety of car types. There are about 3000 refrigerator cars, 10,000 petroleum tank cars, 12,000 other tank cars, and 5000 cars of other types.

E. I. duPont de Nemours and Co. for example, operates a varied fleet of company-owned and leased cars. The 436 owned cars consist of steel tank cars, alloy steel tank cars, aluminum tank cars, and compressed gas tank cars. The leased cars which complete their fleet are listed by T. A. Frazer, assistant director of the Traffic Department, as follows: Tank cars, covered hoppers, and Sealed-bin and Tote-Bin container cars.

The "why" of private car ownership is probably the foremost question in many readers' minds. There are a variety of answers.

John J. Clement, general traffic manager, The Best Foods, Inc., explains his company's ownership of a fleet of over 200 tank cars in this way:

"The original purchase of our tank cars dates back many, many years when special equipment was in critically short supply and the only way to be assured of equipment at a reasonable cost was to buy it. There have been times, such as the recent Korean War, when leased equipment could not be had at any price."

In the case of Kimberly-Clark Corp., W. L. Thornton, Jr., general traffic manager, reports, the reason for the purchase was different. Since carriers do not supply tank cars, the company found it expedient to purchase four tank cars for chlorine. Their fleet of 100 end-racked flatcars, built to Kimberly-Clark specifications, was bought to reduce handling costs through easier loading and unloading.

Describing the origin of the car-ownership policy at Godfrey L. Cabot, Inc., manufacturer of carbon black and pine distillates, General Traffic Manager Lee Cisneros cites a similar reason for using a different type of equipment. The company owns 181 covered hopper cars. At the time of the purchase, railroads would not furnish this type of equipment.

Another reason was given by James A. Jordon, manager, Transportation Research and Development Section, Traffic and Transportation Department, Koppers Co., Inc. He said:

"Originally we purchased 1000 hopper cars to protect our move from the coal mines to our coke plants and also to eliminate the problem of demurrage. These cars are no longer in our service. Later we acquired the American Tar Products Co., and this company already owned tank cars. This was the beginning of our tar business and, as the business grew, additional tank cars were purchased. Leasing in those days was not as popular as it is today."

While these are reasons for the original decision to own cars, they do not explain, in every case, the continuation of the policy. Further investigation uncovered several viewpoints on the advantages and disadvantages of railroad car ownership.

"The obvious principal advantage of private car ownership," Clement says, "is to have the equipment available at the lowest cost possible. Unfortunately, not every company can effect this end as the respective operating needs may not provide an opportunity for economical operation. In our particular case (the Best Foods, Inc.) we have a balanced all year-round movement with plant locations at Bayonne, N. J., Chicago, Ill., Dallas, Texas, and San Francisco, Calif., which permit an even flow of movement, together with a long haul for individual shipments."

Weighing the advantages against the disadvantages, Clement says that "in our particular operation, private operation is far more advantageous than leasing of tank cars."

Frazer, through his experience in the chemical industry, has found leasing advisable. He says, "The principal advantage of private ownership and/or leasing is having available the number and kind of cars needed to maintain required shipping schedules. During the past 20 years we have found it to our advantage to lease cars rather than to purchase them outright."

Seat-Cover Profits Get Air

Custom seat-cover production, once split four ways, now is centralized

BY UTILIZING one of the newest forms of distribution —air freight — Ero Manufacturing Co., of Chicago, a producer of automobile seat covers with nationwide distribution, has increased its profits.

What Ero has done, essentially, is to combine four overlapping, high-cost manufacturing operations at one location. Previously, the company produced custom seat covers at Chicago; Hazlehurst, Ga.; Philadelphia; and Los Angeles. Now, all made-to-measure covers are made in Chicago and, through use of air freight, the same delivery service is maintained. Space freed by this change has been used for production of additional standard covers. However, the top benefit to the company has been a cut of 75 per cent in costs of production, inventory, and design for the custom line.

At airport, airline unloads covers from truck (in background) preparatory to processing them for flight. Shipments are made at the end of each day

Before 1955, when Ero switched to air freight, custom covers were mailed parcel post to the customer from one of the four plants. Orders were taken to the local post office at the end of each day. After sorting, they were dispatched the following morning. Two to five days later, the mailman delivered the order.

Now, at the end of the day, custom covers are loaded into a pickup truck at Ero's Chicago plant. Then they are carried to Midway Airport. About 10 hours after the pickup, American Airlines, Ero's air freight carrier, delivers each order to one of five drop-shipment points — Atlanta, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Boston, and Seattle.

From there, it travels the rest of the way to the customer via parcel post. Thanks to the speed of air freight, Ero still is able to get covers into the mail the morning after they leave the plant—i.e. Chicago is just as close, timewise, to the delivery point as the branch plants formerly were.

Actually, Chicago is even closer in some cases. Previously, orders destined for customers located in New England and the Northwest were shipped from Philadelphia and Los Angeles, respectively. Now, the air carrier drops them off at Seattle and Boston, reducing the length of the parcel post trip and cutting the cost.

Under the new operation, Ero pays for the air freight. Parcel post charges, as before, are borne by the customer. The bill amounts to between 68 cents and $1.15 per order.

In each of the plants where custom covers formerly were manufactured, Ero needed enough of each fabric to fill its immediate production needs, plus a reserve for such contingencies as late delivery of raw materials or a sudden upsurge in orders. With one plant making all of the custom covers, the same production inventory is needed, but the reserve is cut. This reduction is especially important in view of the high cost of the fabrics—up to $3 a square yard.

Ero officials estimate that they have been able to cut their inventory about $25,000.

At the end of the year, Ero always has some custom fabric left over. Since seat cover designs change annually, these bolt ends have to be disposed of. They are cut up into seat cushions, or are used to make less expensive, standard seat covers. In either case, Ero usually takes a loss on the fabric. Now, however, since fewer bolts of each kind of material have to be inventoried, less is left over. "Our losses from obsolesence have been cut approximately 75 per cent," estimates Ero's president.

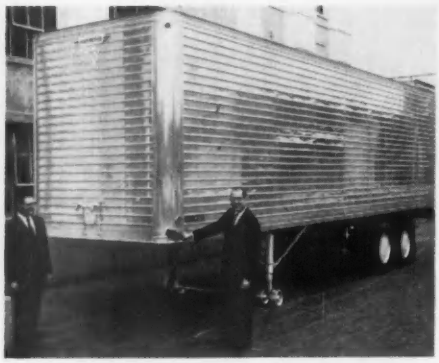
The branches still produce the company's standard seat covers. The floor space vacated by the custom cover operation—some 10,000 sq ft per plant—has since been used to increase output and to add new products.

It takes three workers about 40 minutes to cut the material for one set of custom covers. They use portable, powered cutting tools with rotary blades which can accommodate several pieces of fabric at a time.

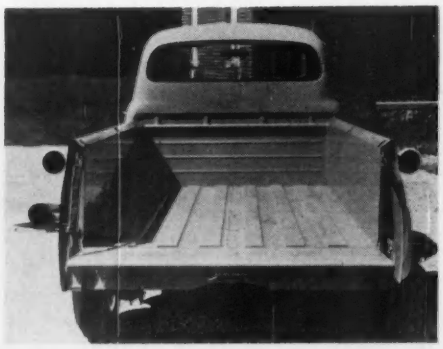
Previously, with orders split four ways, it was seldom possible to cut more than one set at a time. Now, with all orders funneling into one production line, two or more sets can be cut at once. Result: greatly reduced cutting time per order.

Besides these benefits, use of air freight has produced a number of others that are intangible. For example, product quality is improved, the Chicago work force being the most skilled in making custom covers.

When four plants were turning out custom covers, some employes had to be laid off during the winter when orders dropped off. Now, there is enough work to keep the production force employed year round. ●



Trailmobile's trailers have improved tandem assemblies, landing gears, underframes



Cargo space of Studebaker-Packard pickups is available with 112 or 122-in wheelbase

New Truck and Trailer Trends

Improved mechanical performance of tandem assemblies, horsepower, styling, and payload capacity are apparent in these newest vehicles

SEMI-AUTOMATIC transmission systems, new tandem assemblies, improved traction, fiberglas bodies, and cabs with space for six passengers are but a few of the developments presented in 1959's first crop of new trucks and trailers.

Tandem Developments

The redesigning of air suspension systems and tandem assemblies has kept engineers at General Motors, Trailmobile, Inc., and Gramm Trailer Corp. alert.

After extensive testing, Gramm Trailer Corp. presents its new lightweight expandable air ride tandem suspension with a 4 to 9-in. spread adjustment on the I-beam flat.

This suspension incorporates automatic self-positioning in either 4 or 9-in. position, air-operated locking pins automatically operating with trailer brakes, and positive side sway control. This versatile suspension is desirable for truckers operating through states which do not recognize a spread axle trailer as such. It can be changed to a standard tandem quickly.

This new Dodge dump truck features a 218-hp V-8 engine as standard equipment, gvw rating of 25,000 lb.

This International Harvester cab provides room for six passengers. Increases cab length by 36-in. only

New tandem assemblies, underframes, floors, landing gears, panels, and an improved electrical system are incorporated in a new series from Trailmobile, Inc. Newly designed rocker beams and mounting methods offer a weight reduction of 200-lb. Greater strength without increased weight is achieved by an extruded aluminum floor section which can support gross lift truck axle loads up to 11,000 lb. Mounting bolsters and diagonal braces are unitized to assure perfect alignment and greater lift capacity for the landing gear.

For the use of the air suspension system, two air bellows are mounted vertically between right-angle rocker beams. The beams are connected to the suspension axles, and rotate on trunnion shafts secured on the trailer subframe. Downward weight of the payload on the trunnions causes the rocker beams to compress the air bellows. As road surface irregularities force the axle up or down, the rocker beams rotate on the trunnion to compress or expand the bellows. Air pressure in the bellows is regulated by a simple control system.

Paper Overlaid Veneer Boxes

Rough handling and diagonal-compression tests with approximately 220 boxes were used to gage the relative performance of various paper-overlaid veneers and V3s fibreboard and container-grade plywood. Only a few paper-overlaid veneer materials approached the rough-handling performance of V3s fibreboard panel boxes, except when intermediate cleats were used as required for fibreboard. Then the rough-handling performance of the paper-overlaid veneer boxes equalled that of the V3s boxes. Paper-overlaid veneer boxes resisted compressive forces better than the cleated fibreboard boxes.

many as six warehouses to effect this saving.

Look at Drayage Costs

Local drayage cost from warehouse to customer is without doubt a perplexing problem. In the first place, every manufacturer must work out a rate that is fair to draymen. It must be small enough to be absorbed in an attractive selling price. And it must maintain sales volume in face of competition.

Warehousemen operating their own trucks know their trucking costs must be held down. Fair drayage rates are an inducement to sell their storage services. They have discussed this with me with complete frankness on numerous occasions. They have admitted that trucking profit was secondary to the income they must net on the warehouse's capital investment.

But no ethical manufacturer wants or expects this or any service at a loss. There is a better solution. Independent draymen can be induced to haul merchandise at an agreeable rate, particularly on volume basis. This gives the warehouse the business it wants, and the drayman the cartage he wants. All parties profit.

Look at Drayage Allowances

In the food distribution business the profit margin is very narrow. Therefore, every effort is made to develop contacts with national chain stores, large independent distributors, jobbers, etc. As a rule, these customers operate large fleets of trucks to deliver products from their warehouses to their stores. They are very receptive to allowances for picking up merchandise at the manufacturer's warehouse. The income on the pickups assists in defraying their truck operation costs.

We know of several such arrangements. They spot their trailers on the public warehouse docks every day. The warehouse loads them for pickup the same day by the customers' tractor. Allowances on a fully loaded trailer net a nice profit.

Another way to cut distribution costs is by periodic review of your product's rate classification. Many a company has not thoroughly checked the tariff rate set on its products. The possibility of changing that classification to obtain a lower rate always exists. This requires intensive analysis and proper presentation to the tariff commission. However, it is a worth-while effort as it can pay handsome dividends.

Quite often, also, bills of lading are not written correctly. This can result in wrong interpretation in the rate charge by the carrier. Our company uses a standard description on every bill of lading or dray ticket. This insures the proper rate at all times.

This 8 page analysis

(with functional charts of interest to executives in management, planning and control, manufacturing, sales and industrial traffic) outlines the functions of industrial warehousing in relation to the problems of modern industry. It is based on actual, highly successful operating experience. Industrial executives will find it interesting and valuable as reference material.

May we send you "Functions of Industrial Warehousing?" It will be mailed to you promptly on request. Dept E.

Can Modern Industrial Warehousing help you solve problems in:

- MANUFACTURING?
- BANKING?
- MARKET EXPANSION?

Do you have a "model mix" problem which banking might help solve? Would bulk shipments into the Detroit Market cut your shipping costs? Have you a problem of service parts distribution? Could a local sub-assembly service on your product cut costs and improve deliveries? Bond has helped many industries arrive at practical answers to such questions . . . which are discussed in this analysis.

BOND STEEL & STORAGE COMPANY

Storage and product handling involves an individual rate negotiation. To obtain the profit desired, well managed warehouses have a detailed operation analysis. They know what income must be obtained for their space. They also have a breakdown of handling costs of most products.

On the other hand, the manufacturer has his cost figures. Also, competition enters into the picture.

When the warehouse's rates fall within those allowed by the manufacturer, there is no problem. When they do not, it is better to try to work out the problem than go to some other city or a less desirable warehouse. Quite often the manufacturer can prove that his products can be handled in a more efficient volume manner. As a result, an adjusted rate for storage and handling can be worked that will create a profit for the warehouse.

"Hmmm, not there either, try it against the back wall again."

Manufacturers must have a fairly uniform national distribution cost to properly figure a correct selling price for their products. A variation in distribution costs would cause a complex setup. It would result either in different selling prices for different regions of the country or variations in the profit structure.

Variations in regional prices also would cause complications where large customers are buying on a national basis from one central purchasing control office. These firms must set a uniform price to their consumers. Most of the large companies would not consider a differential price for different states in which they have retail stores or distribution.

The factors outlined are the major ones in our field. Other manufacturers may be able to include others. For example, shipments of products in bulk to warehouse points can be made at rates lower than small package units. Often it is possible to arrange for repackaging at the warehouse for the same rate as the factory. The shipping cost saving can be considered as an added profit. It also could mean an important competitive advantage.

The main point is that ready-made public warehouse facilities are available all over the country for low cost distribution. It remains for each manufacturer to use them to his best advantage. When local distribution costs get out of line, there are many ways to bring them back. Usually, it pays to take the trouble to realign them rather than to give up the advantages of local distribution. ●

NORTH WESTERN

The Railroad Serving Every Major Western Port on the Great Lakes

CHICAGO MILWAUKEE GREEN BAY DULUTH SUPERIOR

The Chicago and North Western Railway is the natural midwestern "Port of Entry" to important world markets, as it serves every major port on the western shores of Lake Michigan and Lake Superior. Its lines from these ports penetrate deep into the rich agricultural and industrial regions of the midwest, and its connections blanket the entire western United States.

This growing rail-ship freight service brings a new bonus to every North Western shipper engaged in foreign trade. It also becomes an important advantage to industry considering the selection of a new plant site—world markets can be easily and economically reached from your own rail siding.

Constant improvements in freight service, equipment, schedules, rate structure and methods are making North Western the preferred carrier in the midwest. We are geared to expedite the increasing traffic through these western Great Lakes ports, and stand ready, with the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway to deep-draft vessels, to serve the entire world.

or losses if they occur; backed up by legal liability, fidelity bonds on employes and other insurance.

6. SPECIFIC SERVICE ANALYSIS—Shipping know-how to use proper classifications and routing to save freight costs and transit time on points forwarded beyond the city where the warehouse is located. Do they have adequate, dependable cartage service in the local area?

7. INDUSTRY STANDING — Are they a member of The American Warehousemen's Association? One indication of an investigation of acceptability. Association with one of the nationwide experienced sales organizations is beneficial also.

8. ACCESSORIAL SERVICES — At the present your warehouse requirements may be limited to adequate storage facilities. In a few months, however, you may need drayage, repackaging, and other accessorial services.

9. STABILITY — A warehouse should be qualified to serve for a long period, as changes can be expensive. The better acquainted they become with your business, the more efficient they should be.

10. GOOD CUSTOMER RELATIONS—Warehouses who help to get or maintain sales by their conscientious actions or courtesies extended in your behalf. This can be one of the most valuable intangible benefits a warehouse may render and might be like having one or more additional sales representatives without the usual cost. A personal visit to inspect prospective facilities is an excellent way to evaluate the merits of the warehouse company.

BEWARE OF:

1. SPECIAL RATES—A low price should be accompanied by a long-term guarantee. Some companies quote low due to lack of knowledge about certain commodities. Others do so deliberately to get new business, expecting to increase rates later. The sweetness of low price never offsets the sourness of poor service.

2. LACK OF CUSTOMER REFERENCES—Warehouses should be able to give satisfactory references from other substantial customers.

3. PLANT CONGESTION—Lines of trucks waiting to get into receiving or shipping doors may be an indication of congestion causing delays.

4. POOR "IN-OUT" CONTROL—Failure to use a lot-and-locator system to guarantee shipment of the oldest stock first shows poor management.

5. LACK OF ROUTINE INVENTORY PRACTICE—Reticence in furnishing book inventories monthly and physical inventories promptly (at least once a year) will handicap distribution control.

6. LACK OF EFFICIENT OFFICE PERSONNEL—Delays in mailing and processing completed orders can cost customers.

7. LACK OF PROMPT CARTAGE SERVICE — Inability to complete withdrawals on deliveries or shipments not later than the next working day following receipt of the order on less carload quantities is poor service.

8. POOR MANAGEMENT RATING—Warehouses whose bank references or Dun & Bradstreet report show lack of good management should be avoided.

9. POOR STORAGE CONDITIONS—Condition of the building where the goods are to be stored may not be suitable or safe for your kind of merchandise.

10. LACK OF GOOD LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS—A record of poor labor and personnel relations may result in rapid turnover or strikes not on an industry level. Dissatisfied employes do not promote efficiency.

It is often the intangibles in a public warehouse service that can mean the most; the actual cost is not entirely the basic storage and handling rates quoted. Companies that perform their own warehousing may not have an accurate cost record for comparing with like service in a public warehouse. Each function is hard to break down in a manner shown on the warehousemen's quotation. ●

. . . Special Cars

Cisneros, of the Cabot Company, values the greater control over availability which results from car ownership. However, offsetting this he lists the lag in increasing allowances vs. rising costs as well as low settlement value in case of cars which are completely destroyed. He expresses some doubt as to whether the advantages outweigh the disadvantages. However, he feels that a change of policy would be difficult because of industry practice.

Advantages realized by Thornton are as follows: "Private cars assure a source of supply during car shortages. If they are utilized fully, mileage returns eventually pay for them. There is no demurrage on private cars on private tracks."

Examining the other side, he says, that there are no real disadvantages in his opinion. Records must be kept of car movements, a function which shippers do not perform when using carrier-owned cars. Thornton points out that during the slack periods it is sometimes a problem to determine what to do with surplus cars.

"The advantages far outweight the disadvantages," the Kimberly-Clark GTM says.

Jordon, of Koppers, enumerates five advantages and six disadvantages. Then he concludes on the issue of advantages vs. disadvantages, "This would depend upon the company cash position, the cost of the equipment and the return on investment. Generally, we have been satisfied with owning our rail cars."

The advantages which Koppers Co. reports are:

1. It is cheaper to own than to lease from a leasing company.
2. Through owning, the company has equity or scrap value in the cars.
3. Owned cars may be amortized rapidly when certificates of necessity are available.
4. Owning gives assurance of the availability of the cars.
5. In leasing, mileage allowances may not exceed the total amount of the lease payments per car.

The disadvantages are:

1. Owning requires a substantial outlay of capital.
2. This capital may be used in another phase of the business at a greater return on investment.
3. During a depressed business period, the cars cannot be released from the service, resulting in continued maintenance and financial costs.
4. The Internal Revenue Service requires a period of 25 to 30 years for depreciation purposes on rail cars.
5. The equipment appears on the balance sheet as a capital asset rather than as an operating expense in the case of leasing.
6. If money has to be borrowed to purchase the equipment, interest has to be paid on this money.

Many car owners also are car lessees. One policy followed by many of these companies in determining when to lease and when to buy was clearly set forth by Jordon.

He said:

"While there are advantages in both, the better philosophy seems to be to have a sufficient number of owned cars to satisfy basic needs and utilize a leasing service for additional cars to handle the overflow. However, special equipment may be needed for a specific movement and, therefore, return on investment should be kept in mind in determining whether the capital invested can be more effectively utilized in another phase of the business. If so, it would then be more profitable to lease this equipment."

Flexibility

The Best Foods, Inc., is another of the companies using leasing to attain flexibility. DuPont's ownership of only 436 cars while leasing over 3000 represents another policy—a transition from car ownership to car leasing.

The problem of cash purchase as opposed to "lease purchase" through a financial institution was commented on by the general traffic manager of The Best Foods, Inc. He said that the advantage of this method of acquiring equipment is "that the large capital investment is avoided when it is necessary to purchase a large number of cars. In most of these cases the operation is practically the same as though the cars were purchased directly by the user but there is, of course, a charge for the financing. . . I would conclude that outright private purchase, where feasible, would be more practical."

Life of Cars

Average life of these cars varies from the 10 years estimated by Godfrey L. Cabot, Inc., to the 30-year estimate of Koppers Co., Inc.

DuPont, with a wide experience range in the various types of cars has an explanation for this: "The life of these cars varies and depends to a great extent on the nature of the commodities transported. The tanks of cars carrying corrosive liquids naturally deteriorate more rapidly than do the tanks of cars carrying such materials as alcohol, methanol, silicate of soda, and various kinds of compressed gases."

The combined size of each company's owned and leased fleets is a big determining factor in whether or not the company will repair its own cars. Where companies are not equipped to carry out this service, they arrange to have it performed by railroads or car builders.

Are these companies about to give up car ownership? The answer is a qualified no. About half of the companies surveyed are carrying out a replacement and expansion program. The others are continuing the policy of shipping in company-controlled cars but are acquiring these cars through leasing arrangements. ●

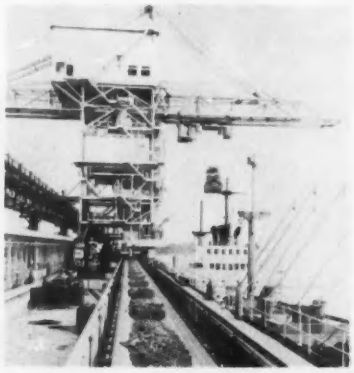
Shipside Conveyor System



Bauxite is unloaded from a ship at the new Burnside Bulk Marine Terminal and transported by an extensive conveyor system to the adjacent Ormet Corp. plant, where it is processed into alumina. highway tractor which utilizes stabilized air ride, independent front wheel suspension, fabricated frames, and aluminum tilt cabs. The tractor is 48-in. from bumper to back of cab.

The front axle of the GMC tractor is set back 50-in. It was designed to haul a 60,000-lb gcw. The tractor weighs 9987-lb including fifth wheel, 100 gal of fuel, and operator. A new frame design provides weight savings up to 3000 lb over the conventional pressed channel type construction. Air suspension systems for both front and rear have been redesigned into a single convolution type of air cylinder. This eliminates any need for an additional reservoir such as previously provided by a tubular axle. The front suspension is rated at 11,000 lb. The cab can be tilted forward manually.

Cab Improvements

Several manufacturers, including White Motor Co. and International Harvester Co., have concerned themselves with cab size, weight, styling, and operator comfort.

Six-passenger truck cabs for selected medium and heavy-duty International Harvester Co. trucks are roomy, yet they increase bumper-to-back-of-cab dimensions by only 36-in. on all trucks. The cabs are designed for factory installation on 16,000 to 22,000 gvw trucks in two series. The new cab is available for 30,000 to 33,000 gvw models also.

As a factory option, the cab can be purchased under a single warranty on a single order. Another feature is the special provision for 60 to 84-in. cab-to-axle dimensions on selected models to permit standard body installations without requiring frame modification in the field.

White Motor Co. is introducing its new highway tractor line. The tractors have new fiberglas, power-tilted cabs which measure 50-in. from bumper-to-back-of-cab. The new cab is 96-in. wide. It uses curved surfaces for additional strength. The flowing lines reduce wind noise and resistance. The rust-free characteristic adds life.

The cab underframe is made of high-tensile aluminum extrusions with bolted construction. Tubular crossmembers at the front of the underframe give torsional stability. A venturi system allows cool air to be mixed with the exhaust gas in order that the temperature of the exhaust moving through the stack may be lowered.

Pickup Trucks

Two designers and producers of pickup trucks—Studebaker-Packard, and Dodge—have changed their trucks in relation to body length, style, and payload capacity.

The new line of Dodge pickup trucks offers increased payload capacity and improved brakes. The trucks feature six and eight-cylinder engines with 11 different horsepower ratings ranging from 113 to 234. Gross vehicle weights range from 5100 to 49,000-lb and gross combination weights up to 65,000 lb. The trucks have a new grille design, concealed running boards, and new instrument panels.

The Dodge dump truck features a 218-hp, V-8-engine as standard equipment. It has a gvw rating of 25,000 lb. A five-speed, synchro transmission with power take-off openings on both sides is standard. Five wheelbases from 129 to 193-in. are available.

Studebaker - Packard Corp. is moving toward what it calls a revolutionary approach in truck marketing with the introduction of its 1959 line of trucks. Included are the six and V-8 half-ton trucks and a series which ranges from a half-ton through 2-ton vehicles. Gross vehicle weights climb from 5000 to 19,000 lb. The pickup truck is powered either by the 170-cu in., six-cylinder engine; the 245-cu in. six-cylinder engine; or the 259-cu in. V-8 that develops 180 hp at 4500 rpm.

In the 112-in. wheelbase trucks, the pickup body is 6½-ft long. The 122-in. wheelbase model offers either an 8-ft pickup or stake body. A heavy-duty, three-speed transmission is standard with both the new six and V-8. A four-speed, synchromesh transmission and overdrive are optional with both engines.

Push-Button Transmission

A new semi-automatic transmission system is available with Diamond T Motor Truck Co.'s diesels. The system eliminates the clutch pedal in heavy-duty trucks, but causes no sacrifice in fuel economy. Instead of a pedal, there is a touch-button control on top of the gearshift lever. At the slightest touch of the button, the clutch is engaged or disengaged. A sensing mechanism synchronizes clutch engagement with the speed of the engine. The clutch is disengaged automatically when the engine returns to idling speed.

The combination of these automatic actions permits a driver to inch along in heavy traffic without ever touching the controls or shifting gears. The system retains the fuel-savings of a clutch-type power train, and leaves the proper gear selection in the hands of the driver for greatest safety.

New Series

Two newly-perfected series have been added to the Reo line. They are the C-200 and the C-300 series. Each offers a total of five base models. The trucks with their 15,000 to 17,000-lb capacity rear axles are suited to a broader number of applications.

Chassis features include steering which leads the axle for quicker recovery and better roadability. A choice of single-reduction, double-reduction, or two-speed axles is available as are five- or six-cylinder engines.

Heavy Haulers

Two rugged six-wheel-drive truck models for medium and heavy hauling over rough terrain are being introduced by Mack Trucks, Inc. The smaller model is in the 40,000 to 50,000-lb gvw class. It is intended for dumper and mixer service where maximum traction is required, and uses a conventional, constant velocity, jointed shaft in its front axle to achieve maximum utility.

Off-Highway Truck

The larger model is in the 60,000 to 65,000-lb gvw class. It is designed for off-highway operations. Powered by a turbo-charged 205-hp diesel engine, the larger model uses a large-capacity balanced bogie with inter-axle differential. Both trucks use a 10-speed transmission and transfer case mounted as a single unit. This provides maximum ground clearance and shorter wheelbase.

Hopper-Bottom Trailer

A hopper bottom aluminum dry bulk trailer designed to haul light-weight materials such as grain, plastic pellets, salt, and feed is in production at the Butler Manufacturing Co. The new bulk transports are available in either of two unloading models: a center unloading gravity transport, or a swivel-mounted auger transport that discharges to the rear on either side of the trailer.

Manholes, 30 x 72-in., facilitate fast loading. The slide gate outlets, two large 24 x 42-in. openings, provide maximum unloading rates. The unloading gates are cam activated and require one-half turn only from closed to open position. Weight of the transport illustrated is 8680 lb without auger, 9510 lb with auger. Hopper capacities range up to more than 1000 cu ft. ●

Specialized Information

In the field of physical distribution, equipment needs vary from hand trucks to highway trucks, from communication systems to shipping containers. And, almost daily, new products are introduced.

Good management does not rely on one source of supply. Better design, more efficient performance and lower prices can be proved only by comparison.

Numerous directories are available to provide sources of supply, but none narrows the field to physical distribution. To supply that need, DA editors have compiled the following special directory. You can use it with confidence.

Because each manufacturer had to fill out lengthy forms for his listing, he will consider his labors well rewarded if you will mention that you saw his name in DISTRIBUTION AGE.

YOUR ELECTRIC TRUCK BATTERY

Exide Industrial Division, The Electric Storage Battery Company, Philadelphia 20, Pa.

Up to 44% more power. New Exide-Ironclad Batteries with armored porous tubing pack more power in the same size. So you can boost the work capacity of your present trucks, large or small—do more work. Or get the same power in a smaller size. Either way, you get longer life potential and more power per dollar for greater battery economy.

50 YEARS AGO, EXIDE PATENTED THE TUBULAR PLATE BATTERY

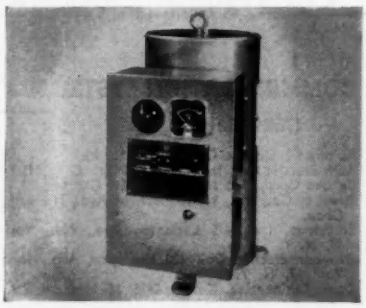
Exide was already 21 years old when it launched the Exide-Ironclad Battery—back in 1909. But the idea of the tubular positive plate was brand new. It was especially designed for electric truck service. Would it really give the longer battery life Exide engineers expected? Would it make possible greater battery economy? Look at the results.

Against every other type of battery—in every type of industrial truck application—in all kinds of heavy duty service, nothing has been found to match the Exide-Ironclad. A recent survey revealed that 91% of truck owners who have used Exide Batteries still use them. Once they experience the advantages Exide Batteries offer, they seldom buy any other brand. No other battery approaches this record of user satisfaction.

Today, of course, the Exide-Ironclad Battery is 50 years better than it was in the beginning. Exide engineers have constantly improved it. They have learned the secrets about tubular plate construction that only experience could teach—secrets about casting the lead grids, formulating grid alloys, composition of active material, filling the tubes, performance of tubing (about 20 different types were tested over a 15-year period before the last change). So the new Exide-Ironclad Batteries give today's buyer greater life and economy than ever before.

For more details on the new Exide-Ironclad Batteries, write for a copy of the 8-page, illustrated Brochure #6230

Today's advanced-design electric industrial trucks yield their greatest economy and productivity when teamed with the new, more powerful, Exide-Ironclad Batteries.



Now—get your chargers from Exide too

A complete line of chargers for electric truck batteries. New vertical-design motor generator chargers feature downdraft cooling for cleaner operation. Save ⅔ on floor area mounting space required. Can also be wall mounted. Simplified design and standardized construction make possible significant parts economies which are passed on to you. With Exide as your single source for both batteries and chargers, you are assured of better value, better performance and better service. Write for new brochure giving complete information.

How LINK-BELT Trukveyors

mechanize warehousing and freight handling

IN-THE-FLOOR TRUKVEYOR makes order filling and dispatching easy at Pick-N-Pay Super Markets, Inc., Cleveland warehouse. Note absence of overhead structures and obstructions in pathway. Rugged towing attachment with malleable iron frame is long-wearing . . . absorbs shock when engaging platform truck towing pin. Triple-sealed ball bearing wheels with protected grease fittings assure smooth conveyor action. Operating mechanism is in the floor—out of sight yet easily accessible.

Speed order-filling and freight handling while reducing damage, loss and error

Today, Trukveyor has become a "warehousehold word" among progressive firms everywhere. Faster handling of merchandise in transit, safer handling that avoids damage and loss, greatly simplified checking systems—these are just a few of the outstanding achievements of firms relying on this mechanized method.

Wherever packaged or bulky items are moved by means of floor trucks or carts, Link-Belt Trukveyors can streamline such operations as order filling . . . department to department transit . . . receiving and shipping. Both in-the-floor (shown) and overhead Trukveyors will carry merchandise along any path, for any length. Fast, orderly movement of trucks results in consistently high daily output at low cost per unit. For facts, call your nearest Link-Belt office. Or write for Book 2497.

TRUKVEYOR COLOR-SOUND FILM AVAILABLE

Fifteen-minute film, "Pathway to Profits," shows how Link-Belt in-the-floor Trukveyors have solved countless package handling problems. Write Link-Belt Executive Offices.

How to unload an unloading expense

When 30 tons or more of loaded tractor-trailer smack into your loading dock—rig after rig, day after day—something's got to give. And you have to keep giving—just as long as repair bills for splintered, shattered dock edges and bent trailer doors pile up.

With many operators, though, these expenses are now a thing of the past. They're men who've taken the advice of the G.T.M.—Goodyear Technical Man—and installed Goodyear Dock Fenders along dock edges and other exposed spots. These husky, tremendously resilient rubber sections soak up the incessant battering that can damage dock and trucks alike.

Goodyear Dock Fenders are far more durable, too, than other types of shock absorbers. They defy constant crushing and abrasion. They're easily installed. They require little or no maintenance. In fact, the same type of fenders are gentling the berthing of giant ocean liners—in some installations serving for 25 years without appreciable wear.

Wouldn't it pay you, then, to look into this proved way of unloading some of your unloading expenses? The G.T.M. will be glad to furnish further facts and figures. Contact him through your Goodyear Distributor—or by writing:

HOW Empire Terminal Warehouse Dallas, Texas ELIMINATED ADDRESSING BOTTLENECK OF MULTIPLE SHIPMENTS

STEN·C·LABLS* TYPED ON ROYAL ROBOMASTER INCREASE SHIPPING ROOM EFFICIENCY 50%

Operator typing bills of lading on "master" machine with continuous form Sten-C-Labl in "second" machine.

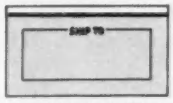
Imprinting direct to PANL-LABL on carton with Sten-C-Labl Applicator.

Addressing continuous form Sten-C-Labls as a by-product of typing bills of lading at Empire Terminal Warehouse, has stepped up efficiency 50% in their shipping room operation. Costly errors are reduced because address is typed only once. Time-consuming filing of cut-out stencil boards is eliminated. Each Sten-C-Labl is used with simple applicator to imprint as many labels, tags or direct to carton as shipment requires . . . then it is thrown away.

THERE'S A STEN·C·LABL* TO FIT EVERY MULTIPLE SHIPPING NEED

These three basic styles are available in a large number of different sizes as well as in continuous forms for separate writing.

Blank STEN-C-LABL to imprint on gummed labels, tags or PANL-LABLS.



Stock "Ship To" STEN-C-LABLS direct to carton—no gummed labels.

Special die-impressed STEN-C-LABL includes your name and address—direct to carton.

STORAGE RACK

Movement of materials and merchandise in all-purpose truck terminal warehousing requires the right handling and storage equipment to reduce costly damage to stock.

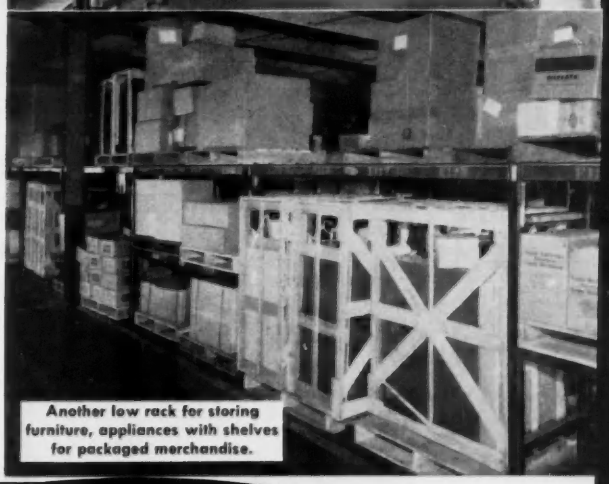
That's why warehouse traffic men have found that the completely new design, low cost P-S 58 rack has no equal for the safe, economical storage of any kind of materials, light or heavy, industrial products and merchandise enroute to plant or consumer outlets.

P-S 58 racks can be assembled in a matter of minutes, without use of tools, and dismantled just as easily. There are no small pieces, just two parts: the vertical panels and the shelf members which snap into panel slots to form the desired shelf openings, and lock to give rigid, no-sway support.

Racks are built to customer specifications of heavy duty channel steel for use with pallets, skids, boxes, or barrels.

Economical warehousing of merchandise using low flush top rack with staggered shelves.

Dry groceries neatly stored to ceiling height for convenient picking and reserve.



Another low rack for storing furniture, appliances with shelves for packaged merchandise.

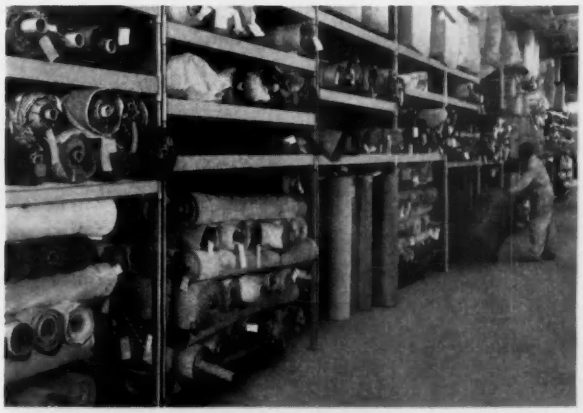
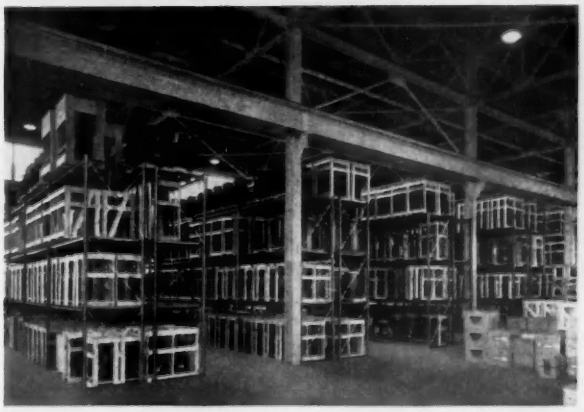
American

Slide-n-Lock adjustable

STORAGE RACKS

can show you the way to greater economy because





"American" Stringers are one-piece . . . made of durable, continuous welded steel tubing, made from high carbon steel.

"American" Stringers have step construction for fast, simple conversion to decking . . . step is 1⅝" deep . . . thickness of finished 2" lumber.

"American" Posts are rugged . . . made from extra heavy gage steel . . . roll formed by special tooling.

"American" has positive double-wedging lock . . . safe-t-pin gives extra security against unhooking stringers.

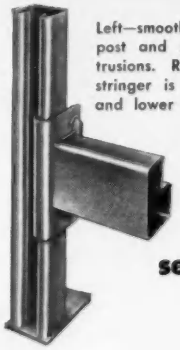
"American" has smooth, aisle-side construction . . . no protrusions of any kind to tear clothes or create a safety hazard.

"American" has higher safety factors . . . 2.25 to 1 . . . for greater protection to truck operators and merchandise.

"American" Racks are easy to erect . . . no costly bolting . . . all parts hook into place.

"American" Racks are easy to adjust . . . all stringers can be moved independently of any other part.

"American" Upright Frames are cross braced against sway . . . turnbuckles provide ready take-up for uneven floors.



Left—smooth line construction of aisle side of post and stringer eliminates hazardous protrusions. Right—note rigid connection when stringer is "locked" to post. Stringers raise and lower like a window.

1. Power up and power down for constant power load control. Operates hydraulically, completely eliminates load springs.
2. Convenient control handle—forward, reverse; up, down. Two speeds standard, three speeds available.
3. Seven-inch lifetime brake of internal expanding, automotive type, for smooth, positive stops.
4. Compact gear drive construction, with motor, transmission and drive wheel mounted in a balanced, vertical column. Drive motor remains stationary.
5. Electrical system features extreme ease of accessibility. Fixed power leads eliminate high-current collector rings and flexible straps.
6. Totally enclosed nickel alloy steel gears revolve in constant oil bath for trouble-free service.
7. Automotive, cantilever-type drive wheel mountings—wheel may be removed with truck in normal operating position, without dismantling any part of transmission.
8. Excellent maneuverability, with compact design and short-coupled wheel base.

9. "Flying Saucer" pallet wheels position forks into pallets with unequaled ease. Handle empty, unchamfered pallets as easy as loaded ones.
10. Single-package hydraulic unit encases motor, pump, operating valves and reservoir into one compact assembly. Built-in strainer keeps out dirt.

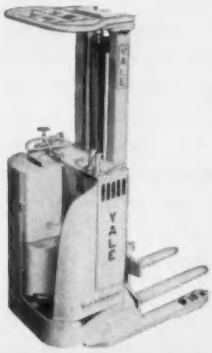
NEW Yale Warehouser builds profits 3 ways

(1) 24-volt system speeds operation cycles (2) Advanced design increases operator efficiency (3) Rugged construction means more time on the job



There's more power in the new Yale Warehouser! 24-volt battery provides faster lift and travel! Faster operation cycles! And your operator will be less fatigued at the end of the day. He has comfortably positioned, easy-to-operate controls! This precision control plus increased visibility protects against product damage.

Your new Yale Warehouser will spend more time on the job! More days on the job! Operational maintenance is minimized because all components are in one fully-accessible compartment. More years on the job! Durable construction! Service access doors protected against bumps—no sprung doors. Frame, chassis, outriggers and channels are a single welded unit.

This new Yale narrow aisle truck is available in straddle and Extend-A-Fork models—in capacities of 2,000, 3,000 and 4,000 lbs. Standard 12-volt models also available. The new Warehouser takes its place as part of Yale's complete line of industrial lift trucks and hoists—gives equally efficient performance in the warehouse or as part of a fleet. Contact your Yale representative or write for brochure #1535H to The Yale & Towne Mfg. Co., Yale Materials Handling Division, Phila. 15, Pa., Dept. RT 1-H.

. . . Union

for relief and help. Therefore, as a sixth recommendation, I suggest that you:

Eliminate pay differentials between employes in the same classification.

Case histories show that many companies have become victims of union organizers before they realized what occured. Too often, the organizer has completed his job before the company even knows the drive is underway.

One morning, management finds the organizer at its door, the drive over. This company has lost contact with its employes. It has failed to develop among its employes company-minded individuals who consider any danger to the company as a danger to themselves. Such employes would have reported this activity. Personal contact with employes by top management will naturally result in the solution to this problem.

Good upward communication is just as necessary to the organized companies. In contract negotiations we have learned that what the employes really want is much more important than what the business agent says they want, and sometimes is quite different.

Through upward communication one can discover what demands will probably be made. He can find the real issues and what the employes are likely to accept.

The communication system keeps one advised as to the possibility of a strike in time that steps can be taken to avoid it or to minimize its effects. The seventh recommendation, therefore, is:

Develop among your employes a method of upward communication which will alert you to any organizational drive of strike activity.

Labor relations history has shown that companies which were prepared for the organizer usually escaped unionization.

In labor relations, there are several battles. The first is keeping the union from trying to organize your plant. This you do by cutting down on possibilities of employe grievances as outlined in the first six recommendations.

The second battle is when the union attempts the organization of your company. If you can prevent the employes from becoming involved with the union, you will win that battle.

However, even if you lose the first two battles, there still remain several battles which the union must win to be successful. The third battle is the NLRB election; the fourth is the negotiation for your first contract. Each succeeding contract is another battle.

The seventh recommendation relates to the second battle—the organizing attempt.

Prior to any union campaign, one should work out the procedure he will follow when (not if) the union drive begins. There is no question but that you will be faced with a union organization drive. The question is when.

Now you should begin to gather arguments and facts that can be used to convince your employes that remaining non-union is preferable to becoming unionized. Today's newspapers are full of convincing reasons. The complications resulting from organizing drives contain additional reasons that will help convince them. Comparison of the benefits you provide with those of union companies in the same industry and area will suggest many new facts and arguments.

Once you have gathered your arguments and facts, you have the problem of communicating them to your employes. The lowest level of supervision is one of your best lines of communication. However, before he can help you, he must know what the arguments and facts are and how to put them across convincingly.

A simple procedure that is effective works something like this:

First, call your supervisors together in a meeting. State the position of the company in regard to unionization. Explain that a supervisor has no legally protected right to join a union and that loyalty to the company is expected. Explain how the union agent organizes a company and what to watch for.

(Please Turn Page)

Distribute prepared instructions on what the supervisors can and cannot do in an organization drive and explain those instructions carefully. Give them the arguments and facts that you have gathered. Ask for suggestions, additional facts, arguments, and methods for convincing the employes.

Second, instruct the supervisors to contact each employe in his department to convince him that a union is not needed.

Third, call all employes together in a meeting at which a short speech is delivered. This speech should cover the following points: (1) The company's position on unionization; (2) the numerous benefits that they now receive without paying union dues; (3) the disadvantages to the employe of the company becoming unionized.

Fourth, have conferences with employes in groups of six to 12. In these conferences, explain in more detail the three points above as well as attempting to uncover any grievances.

Fifth, have individual officers' conferences with those employes who are considered leaders in their department and convince them of the soundness of the company position. Encourage them to help in resisting the organizer.

Sixth, put a short letter in the first pay envelope highlighting the previous discussion.

Although these steps may seem simple, proper preparation will require considerable work and thought on the part of management. Therefore, the eighth recommendation is:

Now, at this time, work out a program of what steps you will take should a union organizer move against your company. Remember time is of the essence in a union organizing drive.

Being prepared is likewise important to the unionized company. Successful contract negotiation is a result of careful preparation.

The businessman has many problems which face him every day—taxes, financial problems, building, repairs, customer service, complaints of customers, advertising, price cutting, competition, supplies, and government regulations. The labor union, on the other hand, has only the problem of organizing employes. Their organizers are specialists.

The businessman is not. Generally, he is inexperienced and uninformed of his rights and obligations under the federal and state labor acts.

In too many cases, the businessman attempts to deal with this union specialist alone. As a result he finds himself in such hot water that not even a magician can help. A look at the case histories shows many examples of companies organized because of mistakes by a businessman trying to handle labor relations alone.

Aimed at avoiding this situation, my ninth suggestion is:

Realize that the union organizers are specialists and that to deal with them you need a specialist.

Look around now for a competent labor counsel. By so doing, you won't be forced to make a quick decision when the heat is on.

The same is true in contract negotiations. Most unions have large staffs of experts ready to aid their field men in collective bargaining. What was once a simple agreement has become one of the most complicated and difficult contracts to draw. Labor law has developed its own language. The interpretation of clauses changes almost daily. A sentence apparently saying one thing is interpreted to mean another.

In order to better protect themselves, unions have banded together as the AFL-CIO. Business can't seem to learn the same lesson. The competitors with whom we fight for customers can help us in this struggle with a common problem.

Businesses stand by and watch as their competitors fall. The businessman shakes his head and says "now wasn't that too bad," realizing that he may be next. But he does nothing.

Band together with other companies in your home area and cooperate in the solution of this common problem.

There are several advantages of group action. Instead of hitting you when you are down with a strike, your competitor will be helping you. Competitive advantages resulting from union activity become off limits.

The organization can form a committee of companies that have been through an organizing drive. This committee could work out a program for resisting union drives which could be used by all companies. In the event of a drive, the committee could meet with the company management and give advice as to what steps to take.

One of the basic problems facing a company under attack is gathering background information on the union — communism among its officers, past records of strikes and violence, how the union organizes, skill of its organizers, racketeering, etc.

This file would be useful to any company that has trouble with this union. Through a group, the effort or cost of collecting these data could be shared and the file be made available to all.

If a strike occurs, the group could render considerable aid to the struck concern. For example, a group of 28 lumber companies which banded together have worked out such a program. During a strike, the other companies fill its orders. The companies also lend key personnel to the struck firm.

Putting these ten recommendations into actual practice will take time, thought, and effort. But is it not better to voluntarily adopt what has been forced upon others through painful and expensive union experience? ●

TRANSPORTATION

Is a contract carrier permit void if you conduct your operations as if you were a common carrier?

IN C—— E—— Co. v. Iowa State Commerce Commission, 86 N. W. (2d) 888, Iowa, the testimony showed facts, as follows: The C—— E—— Co. has a contract carrier permit issued by the Iowa State Commerce Commission. The question presented the court was whether the C—— E—— Co. is transporting goods as a common carrier, instead of a contract carrier. The Commission decided that the company was holding itself out to the public generally, that it was willing to transport for hire a certain class of goods between certain termini or on a certain route. In other words, the Commission held that the company was operating as a common carrier in violation of its contract carrier permit.

The C—— E—— Co. appealed to the higher court and proved these facts: The company now operates 12 trucks, has 361 contracts and expects to obtain more. All trucks start at Waterloo, peddle and pick up freight, and return the same day. Various routes serve 205 towns. There is a uniform contract executed between the company and the shippers, to which is attached a rate schedule and list of towns served. Each customer was furnished with waybills and the drivers were not supposed to accept shipments without a waybill. Many contracts are arranged by telephone, and most are concluded after solicitation by shippers. Charges were not negotiated or based on time and effort to render the service, but were the same for all regardless of distance depending on the weight alone.

The higher court agreed with the Commission that the C—— E—— Co. was illegally operating as a common carrier, under its contract carrier permit. The court said:

"We are satisfied there was in this record competent and substantial evidence of a holding out to the general public. Statements as well as the manner in which this business is conducted, including inferential invitations to the public to apply for service, indicate that the company will transport for hire the goods of all persons indifferently so long as it has room and the goods are of the type it assumes to carry."

When cases are studied, realities are discussed, and decisions perfected, who is a common carrier?

Considerable discussion has arisen from time to time over the legal question: Exactly who is a common carrier? Very often the answer to this legal question is important because the law requires both a private carrier and a warehouseman to exercise reasonable care to safeguard shipped or stored goods, whereas a common carrier practically insures or guarantees that shipped goods will arrive at destination in good condition.

In L—— v. E—— Co., 143 Pac. (2d) 850, the higher court held that a company engaged in casual hauling is not a common carrier. This court said:

"It is generally considered that where the carrier undertakes to carry only for the particular occasion, he cannot be held responsible as a common carrier."

The legal effect of this decision is that if the carrier is employed to transport goods for only one, or a limited number of persons, it is a private carrier. To be a common carrier the testimony must prove that the company makes transportation of merchandise its regular and constant business, and also it must hold itself ready to transport merchandise, at least of one classification, for all persons indifferently who desire to employ it.

In one case a private carrier was

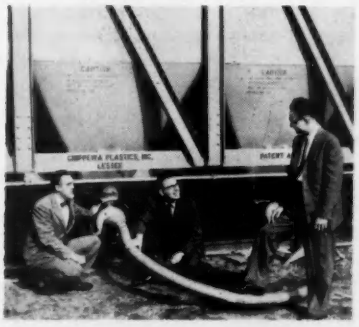
Polyethylene Shipments

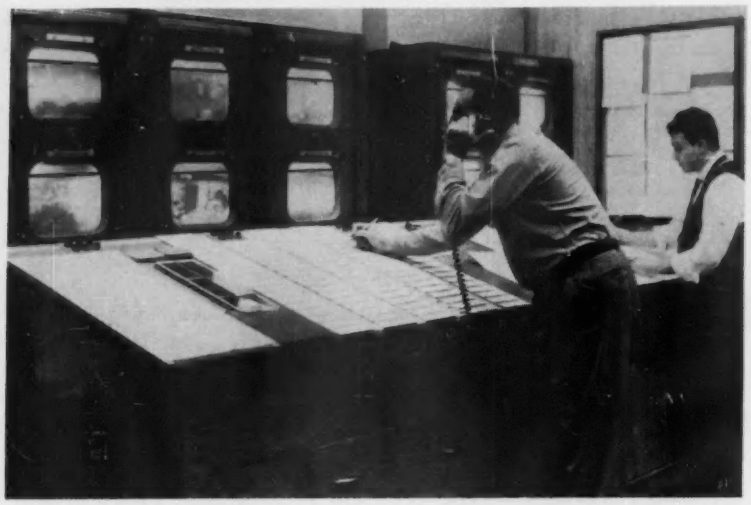


Hopper car shipments of polyethylene have been inaugurated between the new Chippewa Plastics, Inc., plant at Chippewa Falls, Wis., and the Monsanto Chemical Co. plant at Texas City, Texas. The cars, each containing 100,000 lb of polyethylene, are unloaded by compressed air into 50,000-lb silos

Liners for Rubber Containers

Successful test runs of giant rubber containers with plastic liners point to widespread use in trucking beverages and liquid foods. Development of the polyethylene plastic liner, which is reusable, makes the container serviceable for many additional products. Test runs on shipping milk have been carried out by Consolidated Freightways, Inc.

Closed-Circuit TV Monitors New York Terminal



Ten TV monitors in new operations office of Yale Transport Corp.'s New York City terminal provide constant surveillance of 43 truck bays as part of extensive closed-circuit television system which speeds truck spotting and dispatching. System includes 10 TV cameras. Dispatchers direct incoming drivers to selected loading bays by two-way radio held liable for damage to goods being transported because he failed to provide a tarpaulin to protect the goods against rain. In another case the higher court held a common carrier trucking company liable for damage to shipped goods although it provided a tarpaulin to protect the goods against rain damage. In the latter case, the tarpaulin was stolen by an unknown thief without negligence of the truck driver while the goods were in the course of being transported.

In another case a railway common carrier was held liable for destruction of shipped goods where the testimony showed that an unexpected flood, an act of God, flooded tracks in low lands and the carrier immediately moved its cars to tracks on a bridge which, although it had not been heretofore flooded, was flooded by these flood waters. The court held that the carrier should have moved the cars to higher ground.

For further comparison, see the leading case of D—— S—— Co. v. O—— T—— and S—— Co., 143 Pac. (2d) 441. Here a shipper notified a trucking common carrier to keep the goods ready for delivery in its garage overnight because it was too late for the consignee to conveniently accept delivery. During the night the garage burned and the merchandise was destroyed.

In subsequent litigation, the higher court held that the common carrier's liability was changed to that of a warehouseman, and that it was not liable unless the shipper or consignee proved that the fire resulted from negligence of the carrier. This court said:

"Having concluded that the status of the respondent (carrier) became that of a warehouseman upon its tender of the goods to the consignee. . . . The duty was . . . upon the appellant (consignee) to show that the fire resulted from some negligence of the respondent (carrier)."

Thus, in this case the common carrier escaped liability because at the time the goods burned, it was acting as a warehouseman and not a common carrier.

Here is a good and dependable rule to determine whether or not a carrier is a common carrier: (1) He must be engaged in the business of carrying goods for others as a public employment, and must hold himself out as ready to engage in the transportation of goods for persons generally as a business, and not as a casual occupation. (2) He must undertake to carry goods of the kind to which his business is confined. (3) He must undertake to carry by the methods by which his business is conducted, and over his established roads. (4) The transportation must be for hire.

Geodesic Dome Nears End

Part of the 6000 gallons of paint needed to paint Union Tank Car Company's new dome will be used on 154,900 sq ft of panel surface. The dome, when completed, will be used as a regional tank car repair and maintenance plant. It will be approximately 120-ft high and consists of 321 hexagonal steel panels welded together and strengthened by external supporting tension and compression members

If a common carrier collects inadequate freight charges through error, who pays the difference?

The answer to this question is: The consignee is the liable party. This is so because the courts consistently hold that a consignee cannot accept delivery of shipped merchandise without incurring liability for the carrier's charges, known or unknown, supposed to be prepaid or otherwise.

See S—— P—— Co. v. W—— B—— W——, 76 Atl. (2d) 891. Here it was shown a shipper delivered to a carrier a shipment and prepaid the freight charges of $1082.42. Approximately 18 months after the acceptance of delivery by the consignee, a representative of the carrier discussed the shipment with the consignee and informed him that the goods had been improperly classified by the shipper, as a result of which considerable additional freight charges were due. The consignee informed this representative that any unpaid freight charges would have to be collected from the shipper as under his contract with the shipper, the latter was liable for payment of all freight charges.

The carrier made no effort to collect the balance of the shipping charges from the shipper, but sued the consignee for several hundred dollars. In holding the consignee liable, the higher court said:

"The shipper, the carrier, and the consignee are all agents and trustees for the public, and no complications arising out of the agreements between them should defeat the purpose of the law requiring the full and exact payment of the freight as fixed by the filed, posted, and published tariff."

ICC Examiner Supports Merger of Red Ball, Denver-Amarillo

An Interstate Commerce Comsion examiner has recommended the merger of two carriers in Dallas, Texas.

Control of Denver-Amarillo was assumed by Red Ball Motor Freight in September. An application for merger was made in response to a suggestion by the ICC when approval of the acquisition was given.

Applicants, appearing before the examiner, reported that prior to April, 1958, Denver-Amarillo had not operated into Enid, Okla., since 1956, although the carrier has rights to operate over a regular-route between Enid and Oklahoma City.

The ICC usually does not approve transfer of dormant rights. However, the examiner said that the proposed transaction is a corporate simplification which is in the public interest and the interest of efficiency and economy.

WAREHOUSING

May the time element of a contract be extended automatically if its provisions do not change?

Many persons become involved in litigation not knowing that a contract may extend itself automatically. It is well established law that a contract for any service, employment, storage, rental, transportation, and the like is automatically extended for its same period if neither contracting party notifies the other that the contract will be terminated, or will be continued on a different basis.

For illustration, in M—— W—— Co. v. D——, 38 S. W. (2d) 634, the testimony showed that a warehouseman and one of his employes signed a written employment contract by the terms of which the former agreed to hire the employe for one year and pay him $350 per month. At the end of the first year, the employe was permitted to continue in the employment without another employment contract being signed. At the termination of three months of the second year, the warehouseman discharged him.

The employe sued to recover salary from the date of his discharge to the end of the second year. The warehouseman attempted to avoid liability on the grounds that he had not contracted to employ the employe the full second year. However, since a new contract was not made at the end of the first year and the same relation between the warehouseman and the employe continued into the second year, the higher court held the warehouseman liable for payment of the employe's salary for the remaining nine months of the second year.

On the other hand, modern higher courts hold that an employe must try faithfully to obtain other profitable employment. If, for instance, this employe could have had another position at $250 per month the warehouseman would have been obligated to pay him only the difference between $350 and $250 per month for the nine months remainder of the second year.

If special storage is not defined but promised and not given, may a warehouseman be held liable?

The courts are reluctant to limit, or to extend, rights or liabilities which the law generally attaches to a definite legal relationship. However, the liability of a warehouseman, for example, may be greatly varied by proof of a special contract or unusual knowledge of the warehouseman with respect to the unusual value of stored goods.

See the late case of V—— v. B—— M—— & S—— Co., 119 Pac. (2d) 586. In this case it was disclosed that a person stored certain merchandise with a warehouseman. Among the goods was a trunk containing sterling silver of the alleged value of $8000. The trunk and its contents were stolen at night when no watchman was on the job.

The owner filed suit and proved that the warehouseman had knowledge that the trunk contained the valuable silverware, and proved that the warehouseman had promised to keep the silverware in a secure storage vault. The fact that the evidence proved that the warehouseman had stored the trunk of valuable silverware in an ordinary room in the warehouse had considerable effect on the court which held the warehouseman liable for the theft.

Therefore, it is my opinion that you will be held fully liable for theft of the valuable goods.

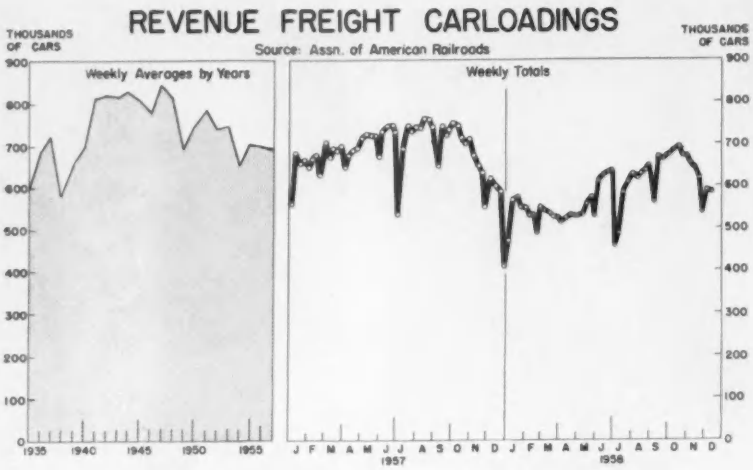
Must any tax be paid if out-of-state persons use a warehouse and distribute their goods from it?

Of course, the state may collect sales tax if the business involves intrastate transactions. And, under certain circumstances, you may be required to pay a license to store goods in your state.

A review of two leading higher court cases will supply valuable information.

In one case A—— v. F——, 3 S. E. (2d) 595, a manufacturer in New York contracted to sell his goods to purchasers in Georgia. The bills for

(Please Turn Page)



Loadings of revenue freight during week ended Dec. 13 totaled 588,847. A month ago 643,795; a year ago 663,038.

Within the Law . . .

the goods were paid for by the purchasers directly to the manufacturer who stored the goods in a warehouse in Georgia. As the purchaser sent in orders to the manufacturer for goods to be shipped, the manufacturer mailed orders to the warehouseman in Georgia who made the required shipments to the manufacturer's customers. The warehouseman was paid for the storage, and transportation by the manufacturer.

The court held that the manufacturer was not subject to payment of license fee to the state of Georgia, or the city, mainly because he stored goods in the warehouse for the purpose of being able to quickly and efficiently fill orders of the purchasers under the previously made contracts. Also, see 120 S. E. 120; 247 U. S. 21; 218 U. S. 124.

For comparison, see the case of W——, 123 S. W. (2d) 797. Here it was shown that a seller shipped goods from another state into Texas. These goods were stored in a warehouse, but with no previous contract arrangements for positive or possible shipment to purchasers. In other words, the goods were merely stored in a warehouse awaiting orders for shipment to purchasers in Texas. The court held the seller liable for payment of taxes to "do business" in Texas. This court explained that the goods when being shipped into Texas had no particular destination other than to await orders to be received from prospective purchasers, and that the transactions in Texas were intrastate. Also, these stored goods were held to be taxable by the State of Texas.

Is the owner of premises adjoining a warehouse liable for negligence which damages warehouse goods?

For illustration, in C—— Co. v. N——, 244 Fed. Rep. (2d) 760, the testimony showed facts, as follows: Merchandise stored in a warehouse was damaged due to water which leaked from plumbing fixtures in an adjoining building owned by the N—— Co. The testimony showed that water leaked from the adjoining building because a bathtub was in bad repair, with resulting continual leakage.

The warehouseman sued the N—— for damages and proved that on June 11, water from the N——'s premises flooded the warehouse; that additional flooding occurred on July 14 and again on July 22.

In view of this testimony the higher court indicated liability on the part of the N——, and said:

"It may fairly be inferred that the flooding condition was so continuous that the N—— had created an unsafe condition, or was charged with knowledge, that over a considerable period of time, the plumbing system was in bad repair resulting in continual leakage."

Can the storer of goods in a warehouse rely on the statements of one who does not hold true authority?

In J—— v. V——, 143 N. E. (2d) 482, it was shown that a person stored goods in a warehouse. In later legal controversy this person contended that clauses in the storage contract signed by one J—— obligated the warehouse company. However, the owner of the goods failed to prove that J—— had proper and legal authority to represent the warehouse company. Hence, the higher court refused to hold the warehouse company liable, saying:

"Authority of an agent cannot be established by acts, promises or conduct of the agent."

Of course, circumstances may exist under which a court will imply that a warehouse company's agent has proper and legal authority to bind and obligate the warehouse company. A good example is where the warehouse company's officials have in the past consistently approved and accepted contracts made by an agent. Also, the courts hold that if a person is placed in general charge of a department of a business, as a sales manager, or purchasing agent, the employer is responsible for all contracts made by such an employe within the range of the department in which he is employed. These are decisions generally adopted by the courts. Hence, the law in all respects cannot be anticipated nor based upon actual rules or regulations, whether legal or otherwise.

One of the best illustrations of the effectiveness of this latter statement is found in the leading higher court case of S—— v. H——, 214 Pac. (2d) 516. Here the testimony showed that a truck owner turned on the ignition, the engine started and the truck lurched forward knocking a hole in a building. The higher court refused to hold the truck owner liable for damage to the building, until testimony was given to the effect that the truck owner was negligent in turning on the ignition at that time, and under the particular circumstances.

WAREHOUSE DIRECTORY

The following Directory Section supplies detailed data on the services and facilities available for three types of warehousing—general commodity, household goods (including moving), and refrigerated. The first two types are combined because many warehousemen offer both types.

Refrigerated warehouses are listed separately—mostly because, in the past, they required special plant facilities and handled only perishable food products. Today, the situation is changing. Many food processors have added frozen items to their list of products. As a result, general warehousemen handling the staple lines have added cooler and freezing rooms to provide the processors with a complete service.

The day may soon come when all forms of warehousing will be so combined that no separation of listings will be feasible. The warehouse industry is ever adapting itself to the needs of the industries they serve.

Of course, manufacturers probably always will differ in their demands for warehouse services. Some will want only clean, dry space at the lowest possible cost. Their needs may be just seasonal.

Other firms will want warehouses to serve as distribution centers. They will expect them to fill orders, apply private brand labels, handle the billing—even provide branch office service.

In the directory, all listings are arranged alphabetically by states, alphabetically by cities, and alphabetically by warehouse names. Listings for the refrigerated section begin on Page 474.

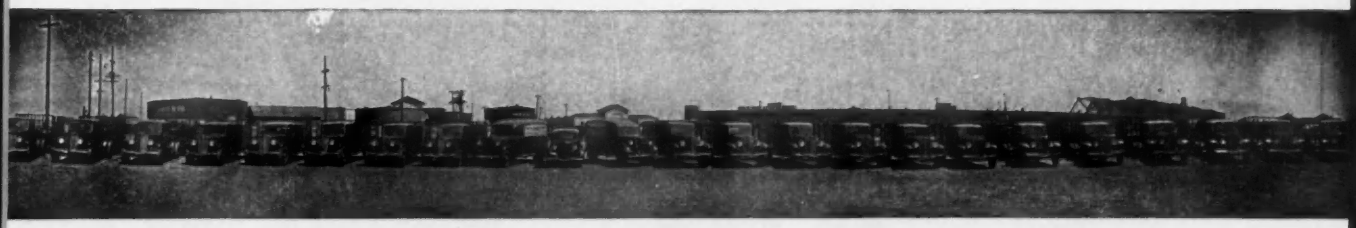
VITAL CENTER OF PACIFIC COAST DISTRIBUTION

South End's California warehouse, or main building, at 625 Second Street, contains the general offices. Their Terminal warehouse (not shown here) is located at 660 Third St. All South End's properties are near all railroad depots and steamship docks.



King and Company, drayage division, operates a great fleet of trucks, to meet the requirements of South End's merchandise handling problems. Models range from light delivery trucks to ten-ton jobs.

American Warehouse, 699 Second Street, which contains offices for manufacturers' representatives, also provides an inside spur track, loading platform, driveway and garage. Yard space and paved parking lot is situated between these two buildings.

WAKEM & McLAUGHLIN
STREET LEVEL WAREHOUSE
offers you efficiencies
POSSIBLE NO OTHER WAY!

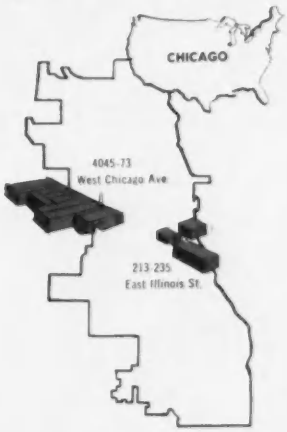
W&M S EXPANDED SERVICES

• save time • save labor • increase your profits

WAKEM & McLAUGHLIN has been recognized as Chicago's leading warehouse for 73 years. Now, with ultra-modern facilities, they set a new standard by actually turning storage costs into substantial distribution savings!

It's simply accomplished with a huge 190,000 sq. ft., one story warehouse operation and 245,000 sq. ft. of land area—all engineered for scientific material handling. There's nothing else like it in the area!

All the factors that raise your distribution expense are eliminated or minimized. Automation is fully utilized to save loading and unloading time, handling, damage, demurrage, spoilage, and to speed your service and efficiency to and from the Chicago market.

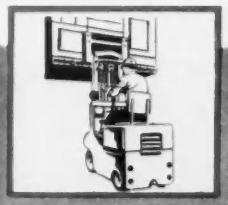


Specifically—these are the W & M advantages:

- No fixed obligation for space!
- No charge for space not used!
- Only Internal Revenue bonded warehouse in the Chicago area.
- Fully mechanized freight handling.
- Enclosed truck dock.
- Inside rail siding.
- U.S. Custom bonded warehouse.
- Warehouse receipts honored anywhere in U.S.
- 18 to 23 foot pile height.
- Heated, all-brick construction.
- Complete sprinkler and A.D.T. systems.
- Low insurance rate.

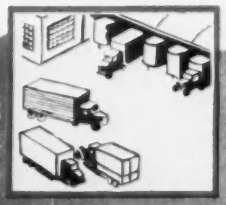
400,000 SQUARE FEET OF MODERN WAREHOUSING

Two strategic locations in the heart of Chicago's industrial and commercial districts:

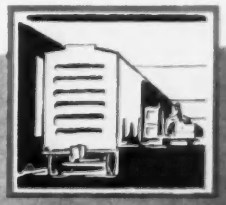


18 TO 23 FOOT PILE HEIGHT saves you space. Fully mechanized equipment plus unlimited floor load permits high stacking to save cost.

ENCLOSED TRUCK DOCK protects your goods from weather. 24 trucks can be spotted at one time. Driveway level door allows for direct inside handling.



OFF-STREET TRUCK DRIVE keeps trucks free of street congestion. A six-lane drive leads to the dock—cuts costly waiting time—expedites incoming and outgoing shipments.



INSIDE RAIL SIDING is set up so mechanized equipment can roll in the car, pick up the load and store it in one operation. 25 cars a day can be accommodated.

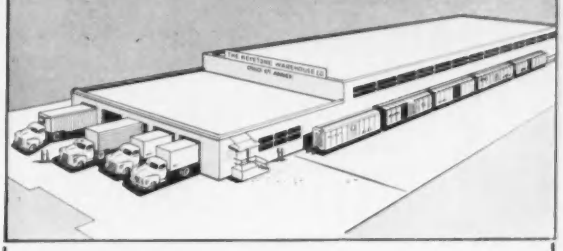
Additional facilities to handle

FAST TRUCK DISTRIBUTION

add a big plus to "Keystone" service in

BUFFALO



The new warehouse shown above, our Ohio Street annex, now makes it possible to handle active truck distribution with speed and efficiency, providing for quick servicing of outbound pickup trucks.

It is located at the corner of Ohio and Ganson Streets. This new property provides a large, off-street trucking court with ample docks at the right tailgate height. It affords 50,000 sq. ft. of storage space in a 1-story masonry building, equipped with automatic sprinkler protection and A.D.T. burglary alarm service. A 500-ft. private railroad siding on the Buffalo Creek Railroad (a switching road only) serves all railroads entering Buffalo.

For large-volume storage, with heavy rail movement, we shall continue to operate our two Seneca Street warehouses with 600,000 sq. ft. of modern storage space.

Whether your distribution is regional or national, you can profit by using our facilities and services. Write today for complete details.

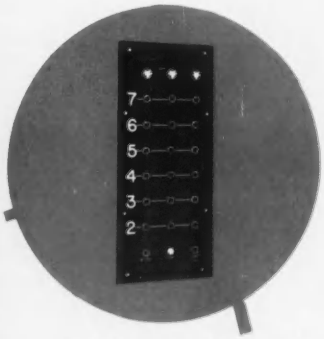
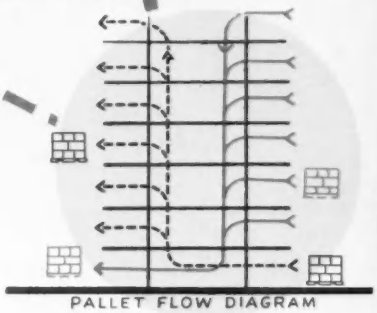
WILSON of Buffalo..



HVC'S Electronic Memory

Completely automatic! The fork lift operator deposits his palletized load on the inbound conveyor, presses the button for the proper floor in HVC's electronic memory and goes on about his business. HVC automatically loads the pallet onto the lift—and the "memory" deposits it at the proper floor only a short distance from where it is going to be stored—in a matter of seconds!



PALLET FLOW DIAGRAM

Automated Floor to Floor Movement of Palletized Merchandise at High Speed Saves You Time and Money at Wilson Warehouse...

Wilson's Horizontal-Vertical Conveyor (HVC) is an entirely new method of handling floor-to-floor pallet loads of all types of merchandise. Developed, engineered and constructed by Wilson management, it is an exclusive feature of this warehouse—and exists nowhere else. It increases pounds per man-hour handled by more than 40%!

The HVC is an important factor in making your storage dollar go farther and your product move faster! The same type of bold, creative thinking that planned and developed the HVC is present in all phases of the management of Wilson Warehouse and is available to help you with any of your problems affecting shipping or storage.

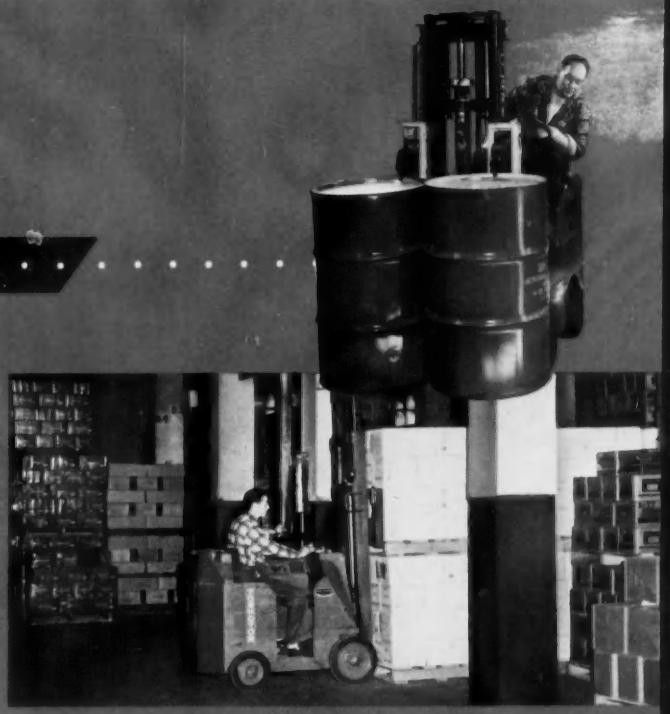
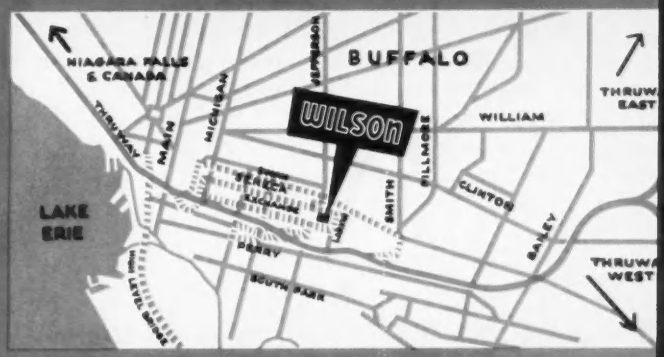
MECHANICAL HANDLING



All handling operations are completely mechanized with Fork Lift Trucks, Side Clamp Trucks and Pallets, "Pul-Pac" and Electric Transporters, plus the HVC. Our warehouse and all our equipment, services and methods are ultra-modern.

EXPRESSWAY ACCESS



The New York State Thruway has established an Entrance and Exit Ramp a few short blocks from Wilson Warehouse. Connecting city streets are one-way and free from traffic congestion. This ramp gives trucks using Wilson Warehouse facilities easy access to thru-east and west traffic and connects also with the Niagara Thruway to Niagara Falls and Canada.

EXTRA SERVICES

Most of these are detailed on the back page of this folder. In general, Wilson maintains a trained staff—alert to all of the problems of handling, storing, and distributing your product. No assignment is too large—no detail too small—but that it receives the best possible service from the Wilson organization.

NEW YORK

AN OPEN LETTER TO ANYONE WITH NEW YORK WAREHOUSING AND DISTRIBUTION PROBLEMS

Dear Reader: If costs seem prohibitive--if costs must be cut--NEVINS is logically the solution. Here are obvious advantages revealed by our quotes. Nevins is a new one storied, completely fireproof operation--23 foot ceilings with no obstructing columns, assure maximum space utilization. Efficient mechanical equipment guarantees minimum labor-of-handling.

If service is the crux of your trouble, NEVINS is definitely the answer. Uncrowded accessibility is expedited by a 22 car canopied siding and 49 sheltered truck docks.

Immediately adjacent to bridges, expressways, and thruways, no other distribution facility is more strategically located to serve the entire local and suburban areas.

NEVINS is an ideal "home away from home" for your product.

If realistic rates have meaning, if the sort of service that warehouses were built for has significance, an inquiry is invited.

Yours for service,
NEVINS WAREHOUSE AND TRUCKING CORP.

Clean and dry, floors maintained by motorized "street" cleaning unit; 7 broad bays, center mezzanine and surrounding balconies. Area greater than 4 football fields. Located in the center of Cleveland's lake front industrial zone overlooking the Harbor. Pioneer in a new system of efficient, low-cost industrial warehousing service for mid-America.

2 Indoor Track Sidings for 14 cars (N.Y.C. and P.R.R.) adjacent to paved Truck Drive-Through. Both in doors. Served by cranes and fork trucks. Quick, low-cost handling in-and-out of storage. Prompt, efficient Rail-Truck transfers indoors. Spot stocks, pool car distribution, and stop-off cars. On-line between Detroit, Toledo, and all points East. Storage-in-transit privileges.

It can be made to function with your sales plans, cooperate with local representatives, jobbers and retailers—even be as individual as the procedure you have established in your own stock room.

For years, leading national and regional accounts have stored AMERICAN because AMERICAN provides the experience and individual twist to their storage needs. So complete is the service, this warehouse is considered an integral part of their operation.

Hansen's Tales are Practical Wisdom . . .

And though

huffed 'n puffed . . .

. . . sturdy stood the third little pig's house because it was solidly constructed. Similarly . . . when you enter a new market, you want to be sure of a SOLID FOUNDATION OF SALES and not a heavy investment in buildings.

That's why "spot-stocking" your supplies or products at Hansen Storage provides you with a means of "keeping the wolf away" while you test the sales potential of the Wisconsin market with no capital investment.

Hansen's two warehouse locations in Milwaukee are within 2 trucking hours of Wisconsin's richest industrial concentration — where 75% of state income and 71% of all sales originate.

Because you pay only for space and labor you use, when you use it — your venture isn't tied down. You can stay to reap the full profits, or leave as inexpensively as you come.

Check the saving in shipping in quantity between high LCL rates and carload rates — and let Hansen Storage serve you BEST.
